BETTER THAN A HORSE—Small boys tell her to "get a horse," but Mrs. Rose H. Myers of Larkspur prefers to

ORANGE THREE-WHEELER

Larkspur Woman Sold On Scooter As Transportation

By WILLIAM L. EARLE

A spirited lady of advancing years has Ross Valley residents buzzing about her novel means of transportation.

But gradually they are getting accustomed to the sight of Mrs. Rose H. Myers of Larkspur, astride a slow-moving, electrically driven contraption painted a brilliant orange.

Mrs. Myers drives a three-wheeled Cushman motor scooter with a canopied canvas top stretched over a high aluminum frame.

"Small boys ask me why I don't get a horse," she said with a chuckle. "I tell them it's because a horse has four legs and this thing has three wheels."

Mrs. Myers, a world traveler whose age is a well-kept secret, sold her car last January and bought the scooter in San Francisco two weeks ago because she "wanted to slow down."

She got her wish. The scooter travels at a top speed of 11 miles per hour.

It has a 2 horsepower electric motor powered by four batteries which need recharging after every 40 miles. To recharge them, all Mrs. Myers has to do is plug a cord into an ordinary light socket.

Mrs. Myers brakes and accelerates the scooter with her right foot, and steers it with handlebars.

"Anybody who can handle a velocipede can operate this thing," Mrs. Myers said.

Her greatest achievement to date is a round-trip to Mill Valley over the steep, winding Corte Madera grade on a blistering hot day.

She refuses to ride the free-ways because of "all these wild people who drive cars so badly." She also finds that county roads leave much to be desired. "They are very, very poor. You can put that in your paper."

A native San Franciscan, Mrs. Myers is the daughter of a sailing ship captain who plied the China trade and spoke 16 Chinese dialects. He died when she was 2.

She got the wanderlust at the age of 8 after hearing stories about her father and listening to tales of faraway places told by seafaring men who visited her home. To this day she has a voracious appetite for books and magazine articles about strange lands.

Mrs. Myers was never content simply to listen and read. Convinced that "a woman can do anything she makes up her mind to do, she has spent the better part of her life traveling the globe. Most of her wandering was done after the death of her husband many years ago in New York.

She has vivid memories of adventures in India, Nepal, Tibet, Africa, Europe, Scandinavia, Canada and Mexico. Aside from the Far East, she has been almost any place you can name.

"Before I went to any country I studied it thoroughly ahead of time—its politics, religions and customs," she said. "And I never, never bragged about the United States, as so many American tourists do."

Mrs. Myers also shunned the swank hotels.

"Give me a Zulu hut any time," she said. "Oh yes, I've been in one!"

Besides her foreign travel, she has crossed the United States 35 times, visiting every state.

A one-time resident of Larkspur, she returned there last year after deciding it was time to lead a more quiet existence.

While she has had "a gorgeous life," the sprightly lady with the orange motor scooter confesses to one unfulfilled ambition:

"I have always wanted," says Mrs. Myers, "to live in a houseboat on the Kashmir Lakes of India."

Sharp Quake Jolts Tip Of Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (P) — A strong earthquake struck the southern tip of Formosa today, knocking down houses and killing at least 14 persons, police reported.

First reports had put the number of dead at 24, the number of houses collapsed at 515 with 661 houses damaged. But police said these reports were exaggerated.

Officials listed 70 houses razed and 48 badly damaged. Southern Formosa is emerging from the paralyzing effects of floods, caused by torrential rains, that struck last week, taking hundreds of lives.

Castro Claims U. S. Officials Help Enemies

Cuban Chief Hurls Angry Charges In Televised Speech

HAVANA (P) — Fidel Castro today accused American officials of aiding conspirators against Cuba's revolutionary regime.

The bearded premier was in an alternating angry and laughing mood as he appeared before a nationwide television audience to tell how the counter-revolutionary plot was crushed.

Castro denounced Dominican Republic strongman Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo as "the financial boss of all those who have been plotting against us."

PLANE FLIGHTS CITED

He also sharply criticized the United States, charging Cuban war criminals who had taken refuge there were permitted to do as they like.

He declared airplanes based in Miami have made repeated flights to Cuba dropping anti-government leaflets and picking up war criminals. Castro claimed American officials could have stopped such flights if they wanted to.

The revolutionary chieftain called the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference, being held in Santiago, Chile, to deal with the Caribbean crisis, a "farce."

RIDICULES HERTER

He ridiculed a program put before the conference by U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter for easing tensions.

Castro said Herter talks about "expeditions that come and go" instead of talking about Latin America's economic problems — "about the hunger of babies in our countries."

Herter had told the Santiago meeting that some of the recent invasions in the Caribbean area were "organized in other countries with the knowledge and consent of officials whose government had promised to impede such action."

Herter did not mention Cuba by name. But Cubans took part in recent abortive invasions of Panama and the Dominican Republic.

TRUJILLO DENOUNCED

Castro denounced Trujillo as the mastermind behind Caribbean tensions.

He told how an American, working as an undercover agent for him, lured Trujillo into thinking he was one of the anti-Castro conspirators and helped break the plot against his regime.

William Morgan of Toledo, Ohio, a major in the Cuban army, sat grinning in the TV audience as Castro explained how he had convinced Trujillo that he was an "adventurer who would do anything for money."

Castro described how Morgan brought a boatload of arms from the Dominican Republic and "lots of money, too." The American was previously reported to have turned on the conspirators when the boat reached Cuban waters.

Weather Pattern To Remain Same

SAN FRANCISCO (P) — No change is in sight for California's weather pattern, the U. S. Weather Bureau said today.

The weekend forecast was for sunny weather except for the familiar coastal fog, with winds generally in the 10 to 15 m.p.h. range.

FAMILY LIVES TWO WEEKS IN SHELTER

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI)—A family of five have survived a secret two-week isolation test period in an underground fall-out shelter the size of a bathroom, it was disclosed today. The experiment was carried out to simulate conditions after a nuclear attack.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Powner and their three children of Cranbury, N.J., emerged yesterday morning from the 8 by 9-foot shelter beneath Eno Hall on the Princeton University campus. After undergoing medical and scientific examinations, they met the press today.

"They have demonstrated that people can be isolated in shelters for two weeks with no hazard to their health and well-being," reported the Princeton University research team which carried out the experiment for the U. S. Office of Defense and Mobilization.

Powner, a teacher at Hightstown (N.J.) High School, said they got along amazingly well during their confinement.

New Violence Causes Dismay At Chile Talks

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Western hemisphere foreign ministers, dismayed by new reports of international violence in the Caribbean area, go into secret sessions today for the first time since their conference here opened three days ago.

At least two foreign ministers — Cuba's Raul Roa and Haiti's Louis Mars — sent urgent cables home last night seeking detailed information about reports of a Cuban-based invasion of Haiti and a Dominican-based attack on Cuba.

Unconfirmed reports said Cuban Premier Fidel Castro will arrive here late tomorrow to give the foreign ministers "new proof" of Dominican violations of his country's territory.

The Cuban army reported yesterday that a plane carrying 10 men and a quantity of arms from the Dominican Republic had been captured near the central Cuban town of Trinidad.

A few hours later, it was reported that 30 invaders wearing what appeared to be Cuban uniforms had captured a town in southwestern Haiti. The Haitian government sent troops to battle the invaders.

S. F. Sniper Wounds Two With Rifle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A sniper stationed on a roof in the Fillmore District with a .22 caliber rifle wounded two men today, one critically, before a dozen policemen captured him.

The gunman was identified as Thomas Antonio Gutierrez, 22. He was hit in the wrist by Patrolman George Rosko during the fierce gun battle that attracted a large crowd at Eddy and Webster streets.

Critically wounded in the chest was Charles Cozens, 26, a Central Emergency Hospital steward who ran into the street to aid Joseph Starks, 39, who had been felled by the sniper's shot. Starks suffered only a creased forehead.

Police said the man was firing catty-cornered across Eddy street from the roof of a vacant three-story flat.

Starks was standing in front of the Holland Club talking to a woman when struck by one of the first shots fired by the sniper.

Gutierrez was calm after being taken into custody. But he went berserk at the police station and tried to attack a newspaper photographer.

"I had girl trouble," he said. "The whole world's against me."

San Rafael Home Damaged By Fire; Matches Blamed

For the second time this week, matches in the hands of a small child yesterday turned a Marin County home into a mass of flames.

A two-story home at 512 Fourth street, San Rafael, sustained damage estimated at $12,000 from fire at 3:25 p.m. when, according to San Rafael firemen and police, the blaze was set by a 4-year-old boy with a burning broom.

Living in the house are Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Cooper and their three children, Susan, 11, Kenneth, 7, and Donald, 4. Also living with the family is Earl Kilduff, 16, Mrs. Cooper's son by a former marriage.

The parents were not present at the time of the blaze, police said.

According to the report of the San Rafael Fire Department, Kenneth told Earl that he smelled smoke. Rushing to the kitchen, Earl found Donald waving a flaming broom. The fire was, by this time, well under way.

The first alarm was radioed in by County Physician Rafael G. Duffy who saw the smoke and flames from his car on Mission street.

No injuries resulted from the blaze. "Rescued" by a fireman from a smoking bedroom, however, was Earl's small dog, Perky.

Two pumper trucks from two units of the fire department were used in fighting the blaze.

The home is the property of H. Robert Ghilotti and is one of San Rafael's landmarks. Ghilotti and his brother, Reno, were raised there by their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ghilotti.

The Ghilottis first occupied the home in 1912 when the parents came to the country from Italy. The couple continued to occupy the home until he died in 1958. Mrs. Ghilotti preceded him in death by one year.

He was the founder of the Lincoln Hotel, which is now operated by his son, Reno.

In another fire set by children last Monday, the two young children of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow H. Wilson of Lagunitas lost their lives.

2 Canadians Admit Thefts In San Rafael

Two Canadian ex-convicts caught in a Los Angeles suburb just after holding up a drugstore have confessed to the burglary of San Rafael's Redwood Sport Shop at 888 Fourth street on the night of July 29, according to an Inglewood police report to San Rafael police today.

The men were John Frank Hunter and Peter David Rotter, both of whom entered the United States from Canada on June 26. Their statements to Inglewood police indicate that they worked their way down the coast with burglaries, robberies and similar incidents along the way.

At the time of their arrest they had parked a stolen getaway car not far from the scene of the drugstore holdup.

Apparently the five revolvers stolen from the Redwood Sport Shop were recovered by Inglewood police. San Rafael police presumed that the guns will be returned but that the two men may not come here because of more serious charges placed against them in the South.

Both have been charged with armed robbery, grand theft, theft of an automobile, and being ex-convicts in possession of guns.

Post For S.F. Man

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — President Eisenhower intends to nominate Philip A. Ray, a San Francisco business executive, to be Undersecretary of Commerce.

Mill Valley Woman Injured In Accident

Lottie M. Ihrig, 26, of Mill Valley, suffered compound fractures of the left hand early this morning when a car in which she was a passenger overturned on Tiburon boulevard near Bay Vista drive.

The driver of the car, Nicholas Van Utt, 23, a student of 528 San Rafael avenue, Belvedere, received a scalp injury described as "minor" by attendants at Marin General Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Miss Ihrig was reported in good condition at the hospital this morning. The accident occurred at 2:35 a.m.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Van Utt turned the steering wheel of the car sharply when he noticed the car drifting out of the highway lane. The vehicle turned completely over and was found by the CHP resting on its top at the end of skid marks approximately 18 feet in length.

Miss Ihrig is employed by the Belvedere Japanese-American Laundry. No citation was issued.

Approximately 20 feet of guard rail on the San Quentin overpass was torn out this morning when a lumber truck and trailer blew a tire, struck the railing and dumped a portion of the load of lumber onto the ground below the overpass.

The driver of the northbound truck was Lyle Francis Esterby of Cloverdale.

NO ONE HURT

There were no injuries, traffic congestion or citation, according to the highway patrol.

Larry Raymond Preston, 21, of San Francisco, was free on $368 bail today after his arrest following an accident in which the car he was driving struck a parked car and garage at 205 South street, Sausalito, at about 2 o'clock this morning.

Preston was charged with hit-run driving and property damage.

CAUGHT BY POLICE

He was apprehended by Sausalito police near the city limits on South street after a passerby reported a damaged car parked in the southbound lane.

According to police, Preston appeared on the scene after flames had been placed in the street near his car.

The damaged car and garage were the property of Paul A. Mayer.

FOURTH STREET, B TO LOOTENS, TO BE CLOSED

San Rafael's Fourth street between B and Lootens streets will be closed to vehicular traffic tomorrow from 6:30 a.m. until mid-afternoon while street lights are being replaced.

The work is being carried out by crews and equipment of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The following Sunday, the street will be closed during the same period of the day between Lootens and Tamalpais avenue for replacing of street lights in that area.

Bridge Directors Urged To Reach Vista Point Tourist Bureau Decision

Charges that the Golden Gate Bridge District is dragging its feet in planning a proposed tourist bureau on Vista Point at the Marin end of the bridge resulted yesterday in a request for an immediate report by a bridge committee.

Marin Director Leland Murphy told his fellow directors that the board had received "fair criticism" for inaction on the project. He noted that the plan had been in committee for several months without consideration and he moved to take it out of committee for an immediate vote by the directors.

Mendocino Director George Anderson objected strongly. He said plans for the project are not completed and that "we have nothing before us." He noted that the "idea came up originally at a Redwood Empire Association executive board meeting "and that the committee the REA appointed to consider it 'hasn't even had a meeting yet.'"

Dan Del Carlo of San Francisco, chairman of the building and operating committee to which the project was referred, said his committee "can't say we should put a visitor's bureau on the Vista Point when it is state and federal property just because a director is on the pan by Marin newspapers. They can pan me too. I don't think we should do anything until we know more about it."

Murphy answered that the project already had the endorsement of the Army (which owns the land) and the Redwood Empire Association, and pointed out "they're not asking us to commit ourselves to build a tourist bureau, just to say whether we favor or reject the idea. Sure, we can put things in committee and just let them die there, but that's not the way I like to see us do business."

Murphy got support from Ben Lerer of San Francisco. "I agree with Murphy that this should be brought to a head, but I don't know enough about it myself to vote today." He suggested the directors be furnished with more information.

Murphy withdrew his motion and president Dan London ended the discussion by asking the building and operating engineers to consider the project and report to the board at its next meeting.

STATEWIDE EVENT

Dominican College Hosts Gathering Of Teachers

Registration will open tomorrow for the fifth annual statewide workshop in teaching education to be held at San Rafael's Dominican College. First of the workshop sessions will take place tomorrow night and the conference will continue through the week.

This is the first time the conference has been held in Marin County and between 10 and 15 educators of the county will take part, it was said today by Mrs. Edwin L. Blackmore, member of the statewide planning committee for the meetings.

Mrs. Blackmore said that indications are that 100 California educators, which is the top limit provided, will register.

Marin delegates will include Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, Marin County superintendent of schools; Edwin L. Blackmore, who is Dr. Hollis' administrative assistant; Mrs. Adele Alpers of the Marin County Board of Education; Miss Vibel-la Martin, supervisor of Marin County schools; Dennis Willis, superintendent of the Dixie School District; and William J. J. Smith, superintendent of the Novato Unified School District.

General and professional education will be covered during the conference together with courses for teachers and criteria for selection and evaluation of teachers.

Sister M. Patrick, O. P., president of Dominican College, is in charge of local arrangements. Most of those attending will be housed on the college campus. The workshop will be directed by Dr. Robert Smith, chairman of the educational division of San Francisco State College.

Charming Visitor Feted At Parties

BY FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mrs. M. Galloway Ferrin of Kent Woodlands has a charming and dynamic houseguest, a Roman, Miss Augusto Mandosso, who arrived two weeks ago and is being extensively entertained.

Miss Mandosso, who was born and educated in France, adopted Italy as her home many years ago. Since 1944 she has been on the staff of the American Embassy in Rome as a cultural specialist. In this capacity she handles nearly all the arrangements for cultural events which this government sponsors in Italy. This is her first visit to California but she did come to the United States in 1951 as a guest of the State Department.

Mrs. Ferrin and Miss Mandosso first met when the former was with the State Department. She was in Rome from 1953 until 1955, when Clare Booth Luce was U.S. ambassador to Italy. When Mrs. Ferrin returned to Rome for a visit in 1957 she was the guest of Miss Mandosso at her delightful apartment on Via Margutta.

Mrs. Bullard Nugent and Mrs. Elizabeth Cargill Hall are giving a luncheon for the visitor on Tuesday at the Nugent home in Ross. Last Tuesday Mrs. Ferrin and Miss Mandosso returned from a trip south. They visited Carmel and San Simeon and attended the closing exercises at Douglas Ranch Camp which Mrs. Ferrin's 10-year-old son, Rickey, had attended for six weeks. Mrs. Howard Hammond entertained at a luncheon for Miss Mandosso at the Marin Art and Garden Center last week and Dr. Margaret Maroney gave a dinner for the visitor. Miss Mandosso was Mrs. Ferrin's guest of honor when she attended the luncheon at the World Affairs Council meeting at the St. Francis Hotel when Henry Cabot Lodge spoke.

IT WAS FUN DAY on Thursday when the women of the press were honored at a luncheon following a tour of the Marin Country Day School. We were greeted at the school by Mrs. Ernest D. Mendenhall Jr. of Belvedere, president of the board of directors, who had just driven over from Bolinas where she and her family are vacationing. Mrs. Benjamin Baum, who is co-chairman of publicity with Mrs. William Peavey, had interrupted her vacation at Tahoe where she left her children, Ricky, 13, and Sue, 12, to fly down the night before for the tour and party. Mrs. James Heynemann, a founder of the school, reported that her husband and their children, Jimmie and Patty, had left on Monday for a two weeks' fishing trip in the Trinity Alps. Also greeting the visitors were Mesdames Brace Hayden, Stephen Heller, Craig Wallace, Charles D. Ryan, and Philip Bailey.

The school has grown amazingly since it was started in 1956 with 41 children enrolled and six people on the faculty. Three new buildings are now under construction, more are in the planning stage. The faculty has 22 members and 250 children are enrolled for the fall term.

To raise money for landscaping the grounds, the school is hosting its second annual ranch party on Sept. 19 at the Diamond A Ranch of the Berrien Andersons in the Sonoma hills and the nearby ranch of the Richard Van Hoosears.

We drove to the Van Hoosears' ranch where we were welcomed by their daughter, Mrs. Donald Westerbeke of Mill Valley. She and her husband are general chairmen of the ranch party. They and their four children, David, Wendy, Van (Richard Van Hoosear) and Susie recently returned from Europe. They were joined over there by Mr. and Mrs. Van Hoosear.

We had luncheon in the pavilion, designed like an old California ranch house, beside the pool. Patty Westerbeke was assisted with hostess duties by her twin sisters, Mrs. John Moulton of Berkeley and Mrs. Frederick Goode, whose husbands are both educators. The Goodes, who have been living in Newport, R.I., are now residing in Woodside where he will be on the faculty of the Priory.

After luncheon we went to the Anderson ranch where the barbecue dinner will be served at the ranch party. There will be a shuttle station wagon service between it and the Van Hoosear ranch where the guests will dance.

BON VOYAGE parties are being given for Mr. and Mrs. Elliot W. Seymour of Tiburon, who are leaving on Aug. 29 by Jet plane for London. After touring the British Isles, they will go to Paris, Vienna, Venice, Florence, Rome, Geneva and Berne, birthplace of Virginia Seymour's father. The couple will then go to Amsterdam and tour it and the surrounding countryside and go on to Bremen to board the S. S. Birkenstein for New York. The Seymours will visit several days with friends there before flying back to California.

Virginia's brother, James F. Koerber, and his wife are giving a bon voyage party at their home in St. Francis Wood for the travelers on Aug. 22 and many Marin and San Francisco friends will be there. The Harold Elliotts of San Rafael, who are also departing soon for an European tour and will meet the Seymours in London, gave a dinner party for them as did the Hugh Middletons of Kent Woodlands. The William H. Prices of Kent Woodlands will host a "welcome home" party for the Seymours on Oct. 24. During the Seymours' absence Mr. and Mrs. Peter Economos of San Francisco will stay at their home.

Here for a visit are Virginia's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koerber of Fort Wayne, Ind. and are being honored on their fifty seventh wedding anniversary.

In June Mrs. Koerber was honored at a "This Is Your Life" program at the Fort Wayne Country Club and presented with an honorary mem-

The article speaks of her as one of Fort Wayne's most prominent women. An enthusiastic golfer, she shoots in the 90s. She never picked up a golf club until she was 35 years old. Mrs. Koerber, who will be 76 on Oct. 1, is a charter member of the Fort Wayne Country Club. She has many other interests besides golfing. Of course, her family comes first. She is an avid Chicago Cubs fan, loves to play bridge, is an active member of Plymouth Congregational Church and for years she has been writing letters to invalids all over the world.

MISS KENDALL TO BE BRIDE ON SEPT. 12

At a party given recently by Mrs. Lillian Kendall at her San Francisco home, she announced the engagement of her daughter, Jeanne, to Richard Thompson. Jack Kendall of San Rafael is the father of the bride-elect. The future benedict is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Thompson of Woodacre.

Jeanne, a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, is a student at San Francisco State College. Dick, also a Drake graduate, is employed by Gregory and Falk Lithographers in San Francisco.

Sept. 12 has been set as the wedding day.

Yvonne Esler To Be Bride

The marriage rites of Yvonne Anne Esler and Dr. Oktay Sinanoglu are being announced by the bride's parents, Professor and Mrs. David Esler of San Anselmo. The ceremony will take place at Stewart Memorial Chapel on the campus of the San Francisco Theological Seminary tonight at 8 o'clock. More than 200 guests will attend the wedding and reception following at the home of the bride's parents.

Three San Anselmo girls will attend the bride. Elizabeth McDowell will be maid of honor; and Marsha Smith and Louise Oxtoby, bridesmaids. William Orttung of Philadelphia, Pa., is to be best man. Samuel Lehrer of Pittsburgh, Tad Beckman of Chicago and Edward Cohen of Boston will be ushers.

Miss Esler was born in Ireland and attended Victoria College in Belfast prior to her arrival in the United States with her parents six years ago. She is now a senior at the University of California in Berkeley, majoring in child development.

Dr. Sinanoglu is the son of Mrs. Ruveyde Sinanoglu of Ankara, Turkey and the late Nuzhet Sinanoglu, former Turkish consul-general to Italy. Dr. Sinanoglu has resided in the United States for the past six years, and in California for two years. He received the B.S. degree from the University of California in Berkeley and was awarded a fellowship to study at Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he received the master's degree. He returned to the university at Berkeley for work on his doctorate last year. As post doctoral fellow he will continue research work with Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer at the radiation laboratory at UC during the coming year. Dr. Sinanoglu is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and has contributed several articles to the Journal of Chemical Physics. He and his bride will reside in Berkeley.

THEY'RE PLANNING A WEDDING. Barbara Cushman and William Bartley (above) whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cushman of San Rafael. Sept. 19 has been chosen as the date for the wedding.

Nuptial Date Has Been Set

Mr. and Mrs. John Cushman of San Rafael, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to William D. Bartley. He is the son of Mrs. Jack Bartley of La Canada, Calif., and the late Mr. Bartley.

Miss Cushman was graduated from San Rafael High School, College of Marin, and San Jose State College where she was a member of the Delta Gamma sorority. She is now employed in the advertising department of Dole-Hawaiian Pineapple Co. in San Jose.

The future benedict was graduated from Glendale High School, served in the United States Army for two years, and is now a senior at San Jose State College where he is majoring in commercial art and advertising. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The wedding will take place Sept. 19.

U.S. Rocketry Has Busy Day, But Major Project Fizzles

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States had its busiest day of rocketry yesterday since it began reaching for space. But the main effort failed — an attempt to send a 12-foot inflatable balloon into orbit.

The Juno II rocket roared spaceward from Cape Canaveral, Fla., bearing the unusual balloon-moon. Its three stages ignited successfully, but the last one apparently went in the wrong direction and carried the satellite back into the earth's atmosphere.

Another failure was a giant Titan missile that blew up on its launching pad at the Cape earlier in the day.

On the plus side at Cape Canaveral was a successful launching of a Polaris missile from a three-million dollar machine that simulates the motion of a submarine at sea. The weapon is designed to be fired from a sub anywhere in the world.

At Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., a British Air Force training crew successfully launched a 1,500-mile Thor missile, the kind being set up at bases in England.

Another Thor was launched at Cape Canaveral. It carried a movie camera to photograph the earth from an altitude of 300 miles. But the capsule carrying the camera was not found.

In Hawaii, Air Force planes equipped with dangling trap-eze devices tried to snare a capsule returning to earth from the satellite Discoverer V, which was fired into orbit Thursday from the West Coast base. They failed to get any sight of the capsule.

Surface vessels also combed the sea north of the Hawaiian Islands, looking for the floating capsule, but there was little hope of finding it.

If the Cape Canaveral balloon had gone into orbit, it would have been the third successful U. S. satellite to circle the earth in a week.

The balloon-moon was designed to show just how much drag the super-thin atmosphere up to an altitude of 1,000 miles or so would have on such a large, light object.

200 Visitors Per Month See Museum

An average of 200 visitors a month, many from out of state, has been viewing displays at the museum of the Marin County Historical Society, according to Roy Graves, curator.

The museum is in Boyd Park Lodge, 1025 B street, San Rafael, at the entrance of Boyd Park and admission is free. It opened in April for two afternoons weekly, 2 to 5 p. m. on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Recent gifts have included a formal black gown and parasol of the late Mrs. Albert Kent, presented by her great granddaughter, Mrs. Eduard Bossange (Evelyn Arnold). The Society of California Pioneers has presented a large brass padlock from the first cell block at San Quentin Prison, also two photo display racks on which old pictures and documents will be shown.

A panel of speakers will talk on early days in the Belvedere, Tiburon, Mill Valley and Larkspur-Corte Madera area at the historical society's annual meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the San Rafael Improvement Club with the Rancho Corte Madera del Presidio to be a special topic.

All interested in Marin County history are invited. Marin couples who have been married 50 years or more will be especially honored.

Hospital Aide Is Arraigned

Robert Herbert Wood, 24, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal court on charges that he is a drug addict and that he stole hypodermic needles.

Judge Harold J. Haley set Wood's bail at $500, and ordered him to appear again at 1:30 Monday with Robert H. Andresen who was appointed to serve as Wood's attorney.

Wood turned himself in to Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos Tuesday with the statement that he was a narcotics addict and that he had been stealing and using supplies at a local hospital where he was employed.

Trinity Fight Continuation Is Promised

WASHINGTON (AP)—Public power supporters have received, in effect, a pledge of continued controversy over development of power at the Trinity Project in Northern California.

Rep. John P. Saylor (R-Pa.) said yesterday he will propose again next year that construction and operation of the power facilities at the dam be carried out by private interests.

The House reclamation subcommittee earlier this week voted against bills to authorize acceptance of a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. offer to build the power plants. Yesterday, the House approved a $2,415,000 item in the compromise public works appropriation bill to start federal construction of the power features.

Saylor said he would propose non-public development at Trinity in an amendment to the San Luis Project Bill.

Rep. Charles S. Gubser (R-Calif.) told the House the Trinity item in the compromise bill represents "a 310 million dollar give-away of public funds."

Goodyear Co. To Make Move In San Rafael

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. has leased a building at Shaver and Fourth streets in San Rafael and will move its business there from Fourth and F streets, it was announced today by John McPhail of McPhail Fuel Co.

The building is owned by McPhail and his wife Ruth, Patrick and Mary Grady, and the estate of McPhail's late brother, John MacPhail, and his widow Ruth.

McPhail said the lease will run for 15 years. The lease was arranged for Goodyear by its western region manager, C. E. Kloos.

McPhail said the Goodyear company has retained an architect to start immediately in planning remodeling.

He said he expects the company will open a new store in a few weeks as a retail outlet for tires, auto accessories and appliances.

McPhail said the building was built for an automobile agency, later was used by a beverage company, then by two other auto agencies. It has been vacant several months.

Airman Guilty Of Bad Check

Jess William Winters, 20, of the 1902nd Airways and Air Communication Service at Hamilton Air Force Base, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a $26 bad check.

Winters, also charged with staging a fake robbery at an Ignacio service station, entered the plea in Marin Municipal Court.

Earlier this week he was fined $27 for traffic infractions. Yesterday another charge of not possessing a valid driver's license was read against him.

Judge Harold J. Haley set 1:30 p.m. Monday for a report on Winters from the probation department. At that time he will also enter pleas to the driver license count and the false robbery report charge.

Theft Suspect Held To Answer

San Francisco laborer Madison Beall, 43, charged with stealing firearms from an Inverness gun club, is scheduled to appear in Marin Superior Court Monday.

Beall was held to answer by Municipal Judge Harold J. Haley after a preliminary hearing yesterday. Beall has pleaded innocent.

CALIFORNIA TO JAPAN Here's What Might Have Happened Had U. S. Lost

By JAMES CARY

TOKYO (AP)—Fourteen years ago today Japanese time World War II ended with the surrender of Japan. What would have happened to America if Japan had won?

The United States reduced to its original 13 states? Alaska returned to the Soviet Union?

California taken over by Japan?

Compulsory Japanese education in American schools? Execution of American war leaders?

ARTICLE REPRINTED

These and other possibilities were explored in the Japanese magazine Shukan Bunshun this week in what it said was a reprint of an article that originally appeared in the magazine Senden three months before the fighting ended in 1945. Shukan Bunshun, one of Japan's most popular publications with a circulation of 600,000, called the article "foolish writing."

The author of the 1945 article, whose identity was not disclosed, had titled his article, "A Proposal for the Punishment of America." It was written shortly after the death of President Roosevelt and during the great B29 fire bomb raids on Japanese cities.

"There isn't one among us who doesn't long for the day when Japanese planes too will be bombing the American mainland," the article said.

"NUMEROUS REFORMS"

Japan should bring America to its knees and then impose numerous reforms, it continued, and predicted: "U. S. presidents will not be allowed to remain in office more than two consecutive terms. Those like Roosevelt, who was elected four times, should be punished. But since Roosevelt is dead, his family will be punished instead. . . .

"America will compensate for damage inflicted on Japan . . . iron, oil, flour, shrimp . . . lumber for homes in Tokyo to be rebuilt."

The author said Hollywood movies had poisoned Japan so Hollywood would have to be shut down. He called for the execution of Gen. Curtis LeMay, whose planes were bombing Japan, and the punishment of former U. S. Ambassador Joseph Grew, Adm. Chester Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"America's greedy world ambitions were caused by inadequate education in the moral and spiritual fields," the article continued. "Therefore Japanese educators must be sent to the United States to teach. . . .

JAPANESE REQUIRED

"Japanese language courses will be compulsory in all levels of education. . . .

The writer said all American territory taken from Mexico would be returned to that nation.

"But California and Hawaii will come under Japanese jurisdiction," he said. "This will prevent these people from reviving any ambition in the Pacific."

The author concluded it would be best not to impose too harsh conditions.

"Americans have their vulgar and inferior points," he said. "But they, too, have the ability to contribute to the future welfare of mankind. One should not think of exterminating them."

Two School Districts Attack Problem, Find Joint Solution

Trustees of two West Marin school districts have reached agreement on joint action to give a better educational program to the children of their area.

In a unique inter-district arrangement, the trustees decided to jointly use their facilities. All second, third and fourth graders will go to Stinson Beach School. All first, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders will go to Bolinas School. A bus will transport the children to the proper school.

But the trustees went even farther than this. They agreed to meet jointly and conduct their business sessions together so that each would know what the other was doing and be able to coordinate their operations.

The cooperative agreement did not come about on sudden impulse. It is the result of months of study and discussion by both the school trustees and residents of the two districts. Its objective is to give the children the best possible education while at the same time making the fullest possible use of available facilities.

For example, Stinson Beach has had two teachers for all eight grades and Bolinas has had three teachers for eight grades. Stinson would have had to build another classroom and add another teacher this year. Under the new plan, there will be a separate teacher for the first grade, for the second grade, for the third and fourth, the fifth and sixth, and the seventh and eighth. Thus each of the five teachers will have a smaller range of grades, although a slightly larger group of students. And no new classrooms will have to be built.

We applaud the actions of the trustees in working out a solution for their particular problem. There are some who may say, why didn't they unionize?

That too was considered. And it is not unlikely that their action will eventually lead to that.

But we like to see anyone who runs a school, or anything else for that matter, tackle his own personal problem and come up with a solution which leaves him flexibility to continue along that course, if it works out, or to try another approach, if it doesn't. Besides it is a solution reached in agreement between local people, not an edict from some "higher authority" in Sacramento or elsewhere.

Our hats are off to the six school board members and their teaching staffs. We hope their plans will be successful and appreciated.

BIGNESS OF VISION WORKS WONDERS

Two men were working on a cathedral. One, a skilled artisan, cut the stone needed in the construction of the great building. But his gloomy, grouchy attitude plainly showed that his work meant little more to him than providing him with a livelihood.

The other man was just a common laborer. His job was simply to carry the stones that the skilled worker prepared. But he went about his work with such zest and enthusiasm that a passerby asked him how he could be so happy doing such an ordinary task.

"How can I be so happy?" he exclaimed.

"Why, man, I'm building a cathedral.

Greatness of outlook and purpose can inspire anyone to reach beyond the narrow confines of a kitchen, attic, factory or office and contribute to the common good of all.

God blesses bigness of vision. Those who truly strive, even in an insignificant way, to bring His love and truth to "all men" realize they are truly trying to build a new world.

"Whilst we have time let us work good to all men." (Galatians 6:10)

Deepen in us, O Holy Spirit, an appreciation of how we can rise to greatness through big vision.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Salin, Wilson, Goldstein Named Possible Demo Assembly Hopefuls

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Marin County may have Democratic candidates for Richard H. McCollister's Assembly seat after all.

Three names have popped into the picture in the past week or so with the men involved at least "mildly interested" in the idea. The three are:

Lothar Salin, San Rafael printer and long-time active Democrat.

Joseph G. Wilson, San Rafael attorney and one-time city councilman.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., Greenbrae attorney, and former special investigator for Gov. Pat Brown when Pat was attorney general.

You'll probably be hearing a few more names, too, before the ballots are printed.

THERE'S BEEN a lot of interest up here in that fight down in Los Angeles over who gets how many tickets to the Democratic national convention. First, interest is that if Los Angeles should lose the convention in the squabble, that San Francisco get it.

This is not altogether a mere matter of regional pride. In fact some of the Democratic bigwigs in Marin are hoping Los Angeles keeps the convention — it'll be too darn much work if they bring it up here.

What worries them is the possibility it will leave California altogether. If it does, Governor Brown will lose his opportunity of making the welcoming speech to the delegates. In 1952, Gov. Adlai Stevenson made the welcoming speech and was nominated. California Democrats seem to feel Governor Brown has wormed his way into a similar strategic position, and they don't want him to lose it.

If L. A. does lose out in this weekend's hassle over tickets, final decision on where the convention would be held would be made at the National Committee meeting Sept. 16 in Washington, D.C.

At that time too, at least some of the national committeemen would then encourage a change of date as well as a change of location. They feel the Democrats may well be putting themselves at a disadvantage by meeting first. They think it would be much better to meet two weeks after the Republicans' Chicago convention, than two weeks before, as is now scheduled.

ONE OF THE MOST interesting political meetings in some time took place in Santa Barbara last weekend.

Eleven Republican and 11 Democratic leaders sat down together with officials of the University of California to discuss ways in which the level of public knowledge of and participation in politics could be raised.

Explored in informal discussions were ways and means of presenting the issues to the public through mass media, techniques of registering voters and encouraging them to vote, operation of political internships for young career politicians, and possibility of a "revolving chair of politics" at the university to be held one time by a Republican and the next time by a Democrat.

Three Marinites, all Democrats, attended. They included Roger Kent, Nancy Swadesh and Don Bradley.

Outcome was appointment of a committee of four Republicans, four Democrats and four university representatives to continue discussions and bring solid recommenda-

Fluoridation Foes Uninformed

EDITOR,

Independent-Journal:

In view of the rather uninformed statements made by several of your correspondents in regard to the important issue of fluoridation of water in Marin County, I feel obliged as a citizen and as a scientist to correct some prevalent misconceptions concerning this question.

First of all, let us consider the often quoted statement that fluoride is toxic.

The parent element, fluorine, is a toxic gas, just as chlorine is. However, the form used in fluoridation of water is the soluble salt, sodium fluoride, which is comparable chemically to sodium chloride or common table salt.

The dose of sodium fluoride that is toxic to man is about 5 grams (one sixth of an ounce); in fluoridation, the amount of fluoride used is about 0.5 parts per million or 0.0005 gram (seventeen millionths of an ounce) per quart.

It is obvious that no man or beast could drink enough water to ingest anywhere near the toxic amount (about 10,000 quarts of water). Furthermore, careful research by eminent investigators in this field has shown that virtually all fluoride taken into the body is excreted the same day and not stored unless tremendous amounts are ingested.

Secondly, the effect of long-term drinking of fluoridated water has been stated to produce mottling of teeth and changes in bone. As a matter of fact, many American communities have long used natural water supplies containing 1 to 8 parts per million (2 to 16 times the amount in treated water of fluoride; in only rare individuals have even the changes in tooth color been observed.

In a careful 10 year study of two communities differing only in that one drank water with 8 parts per million of fluoride and the other 0.5 parts per million, no differences in longevity, incidence of cancer, bone disease, high blood pressure, kidney disease tions back to the full committee.

MARIN SENATOR John F. McCarthy has decided he'll go to Governor Brown with a request that the governor put rapid transit on his call for a special session of the legislature next Spring.

Specifically, McCarthy wants the legislature to consider lowering the percentage vote needed to pass a bond issue in the Bay Area Rapid Transit District from 66 2/3 per cent to 60 per cent.

Incidentally, McCarthy got slightly less than so-so classification from organized labor in its recent ratings of legislators. McCarthy was listed as having voted right nine times and wrong 10 times on the votes labor considered crucial.

or endocrine diseases were found.

Thousands of communities in this country and abroad have now been using fluoridated water. These comprise millions of individuals of all age groups. The health records of these people have been under careful scrutiny by their local health departments as well as by the United States Public Health Service. The only effect noted has been a marked decrease in the incidence of dental caries with a consequent rise in the general level of health in the community.

The final argument to be answered is that of the "right" of the community to fluoridate. This is as much a function of government as is the setting of standards for milk, for cleanliness of public places, for the bacterial count of food and water, treatment of sewage, zoning of factories, and other matters related to the common good of the democracy.

I hope I have been able to present certain facts available to the scientific community in a manner that the intelligent citizen of Marin can evaluate them against the twisted half-truths propounded by a shortsighted minority.

Foreign Student Felt He Belonged

EDITOR,

Independent-Journal:

As you may know, during the '58-'59 high school year there were several foreign exchange students in Marin County under the auspices of the American Field Service program.

As one of these students I would like you to convey my sincerest thanks to all the people connected with Drake High and everyone else who helped make my year so enjoyable and profitable.

In particular, I would like to thank the Drake student body for the whole-hearted way in which they accepted me, and gave me the feeling of belonging. I am sure that they will do the same for Michie next year.

It was a really fabulous year for me, and the other six Marin students all felt that they, like me, had landed in the or endocrine diseases were found.

Thousands of communities in this country and abroad have now been using fluoridated water. These comprise millions of individuals of all age groups. The health records of these people have been under careful scrutiny by their local health departments as well as by the United States Public Health Service. The only effect noted has been a marked decrease in the incidence of dental caries with a consequent rise in the general level of health in the community.

The final argument to be answered is that of the "right" of the community to fluoridate. This is as much a function of government as is the setting of standards for milk, for cleanliness of public places, for the bacterial count of food and water, treatment of sewage, zoning of factories, and other matters related to the common good of the democracy.

I hope I have been able to present certain facts available to the scientific community in a manner that the intelligent citizen of Marin can evaluate them against the twisted half-truths propounded by a shortsighted minority.

Foreign Student Felt He Belonged

EDITOR,

Independent-Journal:

As you may know, during the '58-'59 high school year there were several foreign exchange students in Marin County under the auspices of the American Field Service program.

As one of these students I would like you to convey my sincerest thanks to all the people connected with Drake High and everyone else who helped make my year so enjoyable and profitable.

In particular, I would like to thank the Drake student body for the whole-hearted way in which they accepted me, and gave me the feeling of belonging. I am sure that they will do the same for Michie next year.

It was a really fabulous year for me, and the other six Marin students all felt that they, like me, had landed in the

The Russians Found Deer In Marin And Elk Too, 160 Years Ago

"We fell in, every now and then, with countless herd of the small species of deer... We also met, but more rarely, with another species as large as a horse..."

Thus was described the wild life of Marin when a party of Russians visited the area of San Rafael early in the last century.

So you think you have trouble with deer nibbling at your gardens, and crossing the path of your automobile at dusk!

PERSONS WHO have put out repellents, who even try to shoot the beasts away have met with very little success. Deer in MARIN have even attacked man's best friend, and one dog is known to have had his head bashed in for daring to growl at his four-footed brother.

The deer are hardy creatures, and as far as they are concerned those funny little boxes people live in are just generators of lush living — for every so often from one of the boxes steps a man with a seed, a hoe and a hose — and, in time, growing like money on trees there is supper.

MAN HAS BEEN successful in banishing the "species as large as horse," because it has been a long time since anyone has seen an elk grazing in Marin.

But the Russians found the deer, and Marin, peaceful and beautiful. The quotation is from a book put out in 1955 by the Book Club of California. The volume is from a copy of "On The Ambitious Projects Of Russia In Regard To North West America, With Particular Reference To New Albion & New California." This book was written by an Englishman, and was first published by Frederic Shoberl of London in 1830.

IT WAS PUBLISHED to arouse the English to the importance of northwest America, then believed to be in danger of Russian conquest.

Whoever wrote it drew from other works and the quotes used here probably were from a writing by Otto von Kotzebue, a Russian navigator and scientist who presumably visited Marin.

What is believed to be the only original edition of the book is in the Bancroft Library at the University of California.

SAILING INTO San Rafael, the narrator says:

"We steered between the islands which separate the southern from the northern part of the bay, and recognized the first place of our destination, the Mission of St. Rafael, only by the hills in the background... In the whole of this part to be seen... delightful landscapes, with their hills rising one above another, park-like groups of trees, and lovely meadows..."

"A more just posterity will once acknowledge its value: this desert will be studded with cities and villages..."

THEN REFERRING to the mission, "A number of horses belonging to it were grazing in a beautiful pasture near the shore, in perfect harmony with a herd of deer, which are very numerous in this country." Later, during a ride around the countryside, the elk were seen.

The elk were said to be shy, but the Indians "nevertheless contrive to surprise them with this artifice. Covering themselves with the skin of one of these animals, to which the horns are attached, they crawl on all fours among the high grass, and imitate all the motions which the stag is accustomed to make with his head in grazing... They gradually approach the herd, which mistake them for creature of their own kind, till the discharge of arrows betrays the treachery."

THE PREDICTION came true: Marin is now studded with cities and villages. But Indians are scarcer than deer.

But what if a Marin gardener were to do "treachery" to the deer the way the Indians did it to the elk? The century is wrong. And discharges of arrows are governed by law.

But as cities and villages grow, someday the deer may go the way of the elk.

Alice Toklas, indefatigable companion of the late Gertrude Stein, has now stepped out as an authority on French cooking. Her recipes are particularly in demand — particularly "Chinese Ice Cream a la Toklas," composed of "eggs, cream, honey, and green walnuts." "To obtain green walnuts," adds Miss Toklas reasonably enough, "it is helpful to have access to a walnut tree."

San Rafael Minister Returns From Retreat

Rev. Paul C. R. Peterson, minister of the First Congregational Church of San Rafael, will be back in the pulpit for tomorrow's 10 a.m. service at his church after spending a week at the Pacific Coast Ashram summer retreat with his family and several members of his congregation.

Reverend Peterson is West Coast director for the movement headed by Dr. E. Stanley Jones.

The Ashram movement originated in India and was brought to this country by Dr. Jones, a Methodist missionary for over 50 years.

It is a retreat movement, interdenominational, and worldwide. Reverend Peterson has served one year as the movement's West Coast director.

In addition to the summer retreat just held, a number of overnight and weekend retreats are also conducted. One such retreat was held last February in the White Memorial Retreat Center at Mill Valley.

Hub Baptists To Hear Talk

Rev. F. L. Meadows Jr., director of public relations at the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, will speak at the 11 a.m. service at the San Anselmo First Baptist Church tomorrow. High school youths will be in charge of the 7:30 p.m. service and will report on their recent week at Camp Sugar Pine near Yosemite Park.

MISSIONARY TRAINING

Unique Summer Stock Theater Sponsored By Presbyterians

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

STONY POINT, N.Y. (P)—The Virgin Mary looked Japanese, Joseph spoke with a Portuguese accent. The Angel Gabriel was a dark, Mustachioed East Indian.

It was the opening night at the Barn Playhouse, a fledgling summer stock theater for strictly religious drama, sponsored by the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The chief function of the playhouse is not to make money or develop actors but to train fraternal workers (formerly called missionaries) in handling religious drama programs overseas.

"There is a strong need for good religious drama to supplement preaching in the foreign field," says playhouse director, Rev. Norman Gano, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in nearby West Haverstraw.

"Drama involves the audience in an action which is something a sermon cannot do. What better way is there to put across the Christian message than in a simple play written in the dramatic style peculiar to local culture?"

For this reason, plays produced by the Barn are foreign in origin and many of the actors are fraternal workers or students from such places as Holland, India, Japan, Brazil or the Philippines.

One of the plays is from Thailand, an interpretation of Genesis originally written in the Thai language. Another is Dutch.

Rev. Gano, who directs and acts in some of the plays, is a former professional actor who appeared with the Hedgerow Theater in Philadelphia and, for a time, in off-Broadway's "Three Penny Opera."

He sees nothing strange in being an actor-minister.

"After all," he says, "church and drama are the same in purpose. Each seeks to lift man, to help him find a better way. The theater is a spiritual medium. Everyone who's been in the theater knows that."

The unpaid actors who take

Clergyman Warns Religious Groups Of Tax Exemptions

NEW YORK (P)—A leading American churchman today predicted eventual revolutionary repercussions if present tax exemptions are continued for religious institutions.

Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, of Philadelphia, said taxfree churches could "control the whole economy of the nation within the predictable future."

He added, in an article in the publication, Christianity Today:

"I suggest that 100 years from now the present pattern of religious tax exemption by federal, state and municipal authorities, if continued, may present the state with problems of such magnitude that their only solution will be revolutionary expropriation of church property."

SEES RESENTMENT

He said there already are signs of resentment.

Dr. Blake, chief administrative officer of the United Presbyterian Church and a leader in national and world interdenominational organizations urged churches to re-study their position regarding tax policy.

Some other church authorities have raised similar questions in recent years, as church endowments grow, and increasing taxes and government programs absorb a spiraling proportion of private income.

NO INHERITANCE TAX

Dr. Blake noted that churches pay no inheritance or real estate taxes, and may own and operate business free of the 52 per cent corporate income tax.

With such advantages, he said, churches could eventually dominate the nation's wealth.

Ross Episcopal Church Slates Guest Speaker

A widely-known preacher, teacher and writer will be the guest speaker tomorrow at the 11 a.m. worship service at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross.

He is Rev. Dr. Norman Pittenger, a professor of Christian apologetics at the General Theological Seminary in New York.

Dr. Pittenger has been on the seminary staff since his ordination in 1936 and has been a professor since 1951.

He has been active in the Ecumenical movement for a number of years.

Since 1954 he has been vice-chairman of the Theological Commission of the Faith and Order Division of the World Council of Churches.

He has written 22 books and is co-author, along with Right Rev. James A. Pike, bishop of California, of "The Faith of the Church," the third volume in "The Church's Teaching" series.

Bible Classes Open Monday

The San Rafael Assembly of God will begin a two-weeks vacation Bible School Monday, open to churches of all faiths from 3 through 12.

Classes will meet Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon.

Craft work and Bible stories will be featured, and freewill offerings will be taken.

Taylor Park Scene Of Outdoor Rites

Sunday morning worship services outdoor at the Samuel P. Taylor State Park, sponsored by the Marin County Council of Churches, will begin at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Organ music will precede the service. John Thomson, a First Presbyterian Church layman, will lead the devotions and deliver the message.

Marinets going to the park for the day are invited to attend the service in the redwoods.

Different speakers from different denominations are selected for each Sunday.

Vacation School Starts Monday At Sausalito

The First Presbyterian Church of Sausalito begins its vacation church school Monday at 9 a.m. at the church.

Children of nursery (3 years and older) and kindergarten age levels should be accompanied by their parents or an older brother or sister on opening day, it was noted.

Older pupils will attend in neighborhood groups.

Teachers will include Rev. Aaron Garnet Miller, Mrs. James Phipps, Mrs. Frank Rossman, Pam Miller, Chris Burr, Judy Donaldson, Sandra Taneyhill, Sheila Thomson and Carl Thomson.

Films will be shown during an assembly period at the close of the school day. And Friday afternoon has been designated as picnic time.

An offering will be taken daily to help meet the costs of film rental and other equipment expenses.

The school is open to all children ages 3 through 14.

Retired Officer To Conduct Rites

Capt. Daniel Milton Miller of Marinda Oaks, retired U. S. Navy officer and former commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Supply Depot at Oakland, will conduct the 9:30 a.m. worship service of the Church of St. Augustine (Episcopal) at the Fairfax Women's Club tomorrow.

Communion service, customarily held the third Sunday of the month, will be held instead Aug. 23 with Rev. William Travis of Marinwood as celebrant.

49ers Unveil 1959 'New Look' Sunday

Coach Howard W. (Red) Hickey will unveil the new look 1959 edition of the San Francisco 49ers tomorrow at Kezar Stadium with the Washington Redskins providing the opposition. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m., and a crowd of 19,000 is anticipated.

San Francisco fans won't see much of a change in the offensive unit that takes the field for the 49ers. The major change, at present, is in the defensive four-man line. Hickey will have Bob St. Clair, 265, and Charlie Krueger, 245, at ends, and Leo Nomellini, 255, and Frank Morze, 275, at tackles. Only Nomellini is a holdover from last year's starters in this department.

Both St. Clair and Morze have been principally offensive players during their professional careers, although both have been used on 49er "goal line defenses."

"We've put them on defense because we need their size and agility," Hickey declares. "The 49er defense gave up 5.4 yards per try to other clubs last season — the worst record in the National League — and we're trying to do something to correct that deficiency."

The only rookie in the offensive lineup is Monte Clark, 260-pounder from Southern California, who has taken over for St. Clair at right tackle.

The 49ers have had 33 veterans and 19 rookies in training camp at St. Mary's College during the past week. Five rookies were with the College All-Stars in their game with the Baltimore Colts at Chicago last night. They are halfbacks Dave Baker and Eddie Dove, center Dan James, tackle Frank Geremia and quarterback Bob Newman. All will be in uniform for the 49ers tomorrow, but are not expected to play.

San Francisco fans will focus much attention on Krueger, the defensive end from Texas A&M who was with the club last year but suffered a fractured arm in a pre-season game and was lost for the rest of the schedule. He has been outstanding in training camp.

PASSING CHAMP
In LeBaron, the Redskins have the NFL's best passer in the 1958 ratings. The ex-College of Pacific star completed 79 of 145 attempts for 1365 yards and 11 touchdowns. They also have a batch of fine running backs such as Johnny Olszewski, Don Bossler, Dick James, Jim Podoley and Ed Sutton.

Reserved seats for the game will go on sale tomorrow at Kezar Stadium at 9 a.m. They are priced at $3.75. Good locations are available since some season ticket holders have not picked up options on pre-season games.

General admission also will go on sale at 9 a.m., with seats priced at $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12.

Tynes Blasts 661 Series At Greenbrae

Elmer Tynes of Trailorboat Engineering team went on a scoring binge Thursday night in the Mixed Doubles League at Greenbrae Lanes.

Tynes totaled a sizzling 661 series on games of 247, 210, and 204, by far the best effort of the night.

Other high scorers were Bud Kimmell with a 586 for Vicki's Coffee Shop and John Campanella, 527, also for Vicki's. The Coffee Shoppers had high team series of 1910 and game of 645.

Other Thursday leagues: Early Nighters—Tony Costello, 572-212, Fairfax Merchants; Jerry Pearce, 567, Bob's Sport Center; Bill Kuncle, 525, Swain Realty; John Cottle, 213, Marin Ambulance; Ted Benson, 209, The Patio. Swain had high team series of 2414 and Marin Ambulance an 890 game.

Night Owls—Sam Gilliland, 546-192, Weik Brothers; Mike Finn, 523, Greenbrae Pharmacy; Buzz Wensloff, 508, Bel Air Shopping. Weik Bros., 2331, and Greenbrae Pharmacy 817.

Tiburon To Meet Marinwood In Li'l Loop Finals

Tiburon's Falcons and Marinwood will meet next Tuesday night for the championship of the Marin County Little League Tournament.

The game will be played at Fairfax starting at 6:15 o'clock. Tiburon advanced to the finals by edging the San Anselmo Fire Department, 9-8, last night at San Anselmo, while Marinwood was downing Tavoggia-Brusati Sports Shop of San Rafael, 9-3, at Fairfax. Marinwood pitcher Steve Frazzini pitched a no-hitter.

McKay Wins Title

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Airman Barry McKay, member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, won the interservice singles title yesterday, whipping Capt. King Lambert of the Marines, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

WINS TITLE FOR MARIN CLUB

Bruce Robertson of San Rafael's MarVel Athletic Club is pictured in action as he won the Northern California Junior Weightlifting Championship in the 181-pound division last Saturday night at the meet held in San Rafael. Robertson was one of four MarVel lifters who won titles at the meet as the San Rafael club also swept the team championship.

Tiburon, San Anselmo In Big Game Tomorrow

The "Game of the Year" is the way Marin County fans are describing tomorrow's semi-professional contest between the Tiburon Pelicans and the undefeated San Anselmo Plumbers at Tiburon's Judge Field.

Scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m., the game will show off many of Marin's bright young diamond stars, including one of Northern California's best pitchers in Bobby DeRosa, 19-year-old left-handed ace of the San Anselmo team.

DeRosa enters the game with 10 consecutive victories, during which he has averaged 11

SIX TEAMS IN NEW PRO GRID LEAGUE

CHICAGO (AP) — Formation of a new professional football league with six teams was announced yesterday.

Representatives of Dallas, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, Minneapolis-St. Paul and New York formally organized the American Football League. They said play will begin in 1960.

Lamar Hunt of Dallas, founder of the six-team circuit, had announced two weeks ago that the new loop would soon be a reality.

Representatives discussed such matters as league constitution, by-laws and working agreements, radio and television broadcasts and a player draft program. They want to have draft plans ready this fall to provide the players for the league.

Basilio Admits Title Go Could Be His Toughest

Carmen Basilio says his coming Aug. 28 bout in San Francisco with Gene Fullmer for the vacated NBA middleweight crown could be his "toughest fight" — and Fullmer's sparring partners will be the first to agree.

Gene, who has stepped up his training for the Cow Palace battle, has handled his sparring buddies so roughly that they have been quitting at an average of one a day.

Yesterday Fullmer worked out 10 rounds and did five miles of road work. He sparred five rounds with Johnny Heard and Billy Murray, went two rounds with a baseball bat on the heavy bag; and skipped rope for three rounds.

Basilio is scheduled to leave Syracuse tomorrow for San Francisco. Fullmer arrived last week.

Giants Don't Lose An Inch As Bums, Braves Also Fall

CHICAGO, (UPI) — Losing at the right time can be just as important as a well-timed victory.

The San Francisco Giants proved that yesterday as they came up with a well-timed loss to the Chicago Cubs, 7-5. Despite the fact it was the second walloping in a row the Giants have taken from the Cubs, Bill Rigney's pennant hopes didn't lose an inch of their two and a half game league lead.

Both the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Milwaukee Braves were squelched by 2-1 scores to maintain the senior loop's status quo.

Jack Sanford (11-9), who was the starting hurler for the Giants on Thursday, but got the umpire's thumb for his verbal pitches in the first frame, took the mound today against the same power-packed Cubs. Dave Hillman (5-9) was scheduled to oppose Sanford in the third game of the four-game set which concludes tomorrow.

The Cubs used the home run ball to game-deciding advantage in yesterday afternoon's affair. Giants' starting hurler Sad Sam Jones had reason to be sorrowful as he simply couldn't uncork his usual swift stuff in the humid weather. This was evidenced by his failure to strike out a man in the six innings he pitched.

The Giants built up a 3-1 lead going into the bottom of the sixth. Jim Davenport had singled home Eddie Bressoud, who had doubled, with the opening counter in the third. Willie McCovey, back in the starting lineup after two days of rest, then singled home Davenport who had moved to third on a double by Willie Mays.

McCovey crashed his fifth homer of the year in the fifth.

Walt Moryn smashed a two-run homer to tie things up in the sixth, but the Giants bounced back in the seventh with a tally when McCovey singled in Mays.

In the Cubs' seventh, Dale Long belted his second pinch-homer in as many days with Al Dark on base. Jones was lifted after he hit Tony Taylor with a pitched ball. Bud Byerly came on to pitch and he gave up the final Cub runs when Ernie Banks socked his 35th homer of the campaign.

Glen Hobbie, who started for the Cubs and was credited with his 12th win against nine losses, was lifted from the game in favor of pinch-hitter Long. Hobbie struck out 10.

The loss was Jones' 11th against 15 wins.

Halftime Circus At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A giant circus will be the half-time attraction at the Los Angeles Rams - Washington Redskins football game Aug. 21 in the Los Angeles Coliseum. Game Director Paul J. Schissler said today.

Schissler said that 15 acts would be presented during the 15-minute portion of the half-time devoted to the circus.

Pre-game entertainment will be provided by Johnny Boudreau who has planned a football spectacular titled "Hawaiian Nights."

3 Teams Vie Today In Pony Finals

PROVO, Utah, (UPI) — A team from Hawaii and two California nines tangle here today in an unusual three-way battle for the Division Eight Pony League Baseball Championship.

Hawaii and Long Beach meet at 4 p.m. with San Bernardino scheduled to meet the winner at 8 p.m. for the title.

Hawaii qualified for the finals by edging La Mesa, Calif., 4-3, behind the hurling of John Matias. All three teams in today's action have 3-1 records in the double elimination tourney. The San Bernardinans drew a bye, winning a coin-tossing ceremony.

San Bernardino toppled Long Beach, Calif., 9-5 yesterday to earn its berth. Bill Letherman and Ron Schweinfurter combined mound talents to allow only four hits. Letherman fanned 10 batters in his five inning stint. He was named the evening's most valuable player.

Hawaii eliminated North Marin Thursday night by a 19-1 margin.

Auburn, Santa Cruz Win In Li'l League

defeated Sherman Oaks and Santa Cruz beat Stockton, each by a 3-1 score yesterday in the semi-finals of the Northern California Little League championships.

Sherman Oaks faced Stockton today in a consolation game to be followed by the championship game between Auburn and Santa Cruz.

COLTS' BREEZE, 29-0

College All-Stars' Attack Boomerangs

CHICAGO, (UPI) — The College All-Stars' win-or-lose passing attack boomeranged, and that's the story of the Baltimore Colts' one-sided, 29-0, triumph over the best of the amateurs in the annual pro-collegian football struggle.

The Colts, champions of the National Football League, tied a record for the 26-game series in intercepting five passes last night. One of the thefts was turned into an immediate touchdown when Milt Davis ran 36 yards into the end zone.

The other interceptions came deep in Baltimore territory, one of them in the end zone, to halt the All-Stars on their few offensive thrusts across the 50-yard line.

Meanwhile, the Colts' offense, sparked by John Unitas, was far too sharp for the All-Star defense. Unitas completed 15 of 25 passes for 211 yards and three touchdowns. He hit on touchdown throws of 29 yards to Jim Mutscheller, 13 to L. G. Dupre and three to Ray Berry.

In rushing, Alan Ameche crashed for 61 yards, nearly three times the total yardage of 21 permitted the entire All-Star squad. The Colts altogether whirled for 155 yards on the ground.

NO SURPRISE
The result was no surprise to All-Star Coach Otto Graham,

Mom's Vs. Sons In Little League Program Tomorrow

Mothers of San Rafael Little Leaguers will try their hands at the national pastime tomorrow in awards day ceremonies at the Little League Park.

Starting at 1 p.m. the mothers of major division all-stars will play a game against their sons. The game will last about an hour. At 2 p.m. champions and all-stars will receive awards.

At 3 p.m. the moms of minor division players will compete against their sons.

The Police Department won the league's major division and the Redwood Sports Shop won the minor title.

$1,672.16 Raised In Pony Expense Drive

Last week's fund-raising campaign to send the North Marin Pony League All-Stars to a regional baseball tournament in Provo, Utah, raised $1,672.16, it was announced this week by League Treasurer Mrs. E. Muelrath.

The team flew to Utah Monday, won its first game, but then dropped two in a row to be eliminated from further tournament play.

The fund-raising campaign was called because the Marin team had exhausted its tournament funds in earlier elimination play.

Mrs. Muelrath listed more than 90 separate contributions by individuals and merchants. The contributions were:

Kiwanis Club of San Rafael, Orlando Conti Plumbing, Optimist Club of San Rafael, Roumiguere and Watt, Jensen and Pitts, Tiburon Corner Market, Keaton's Mortuary, Kiwanis Club of Novato, Custom Builders of Marin, Don Davis, San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, Harry Helfitz Co., Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn., Northwestern Savings and Loan, Sausalito Savings and Loan, Marin Golf and Country Club Estates, San Rafael Lions Club, Marin County Savings and Loan, Phillips and Scott, Ross Valley Kiwanis Club, Paul R. ## The Heart of the Matter

IF YOU do business in Marin, and want to do more than a neighborhood trade, there is one best way to build and grow. That way is to follow the example of practically every successful Marin enterprise—advertise in the Independent-Journal.

The I-J covers the entire Marin Market. Nearly 100% of the 25,000-plus circulation is home delivered—right on the doorsteps of 5 out of 7 Marin families. This is paid-for and wanted circulation—no throwaways or free copies are included.

The reasons for the often amazing response to I-J advertising are simple: While the I-J is a complete NEWS-paper, the people in the compact, self-contained community of Marvelous Marin buy it for the ADVERTISING as well as for news and features.

Mr. and Mrs. Marin study the I-J carefully every day for "news" of what merchants and professional services are offering. Its pages are their No. 1 guide in buying and saving and operating the "business" of home-making efficiently and economically.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counselor

Protect Your Son From Influence Of Neighbor's Boy At All Costs

"Which should come first," a mother asks, "my son or my reputation with my neighbors? My boy is 9. He's a good, responsible youngster. A boy of 11 lives across the street. He uses awful language, steals and does many vicious things. Recently he has tried to teach my son to steal money. I believe

I should make him stay away from my boy. But if I try his parents will get mad. They think their son can do no wrong. I don't want to have trouble with them. What do you suggest?"

Sooner or later nearly all parents face this problem. I believe your boy comes first. His welfare matters much more than your reputation with the neighbors. He is vulnerable. He needs protection.

Talk first with your husband. Be sure he understands and approves. Then go to the neighbors. Try not to offend them. Don't tell them their son is bad. Just say you think it would be best for both boys to be separated. Try to get them to work with you, not against you.

Next, tell your son what's what. Answer his questions. Make it clear that he is to stay away from the other boy. Plan to keep track of him. Make sure you know who he is with all the time. It won't be easy. But if you persist you'll succeed.

There's another way to protect your boy. Use it as a last resort. If your son continues to be led into delinquency you can go to the county probation authorities. Tell them about it. They can judge the seriousness of the situation. If they wish they can intercede with the older boy's parents. They can make it stick.

Marin Schools Are Reluctant To Release Results Of Tests

By DIANA BRUCE

How do Marin County's high school seniors fare when they take college entrance English examinations?

A recent Independent-Journal survey failed to disclose the answer, but it uncovered something else: the resentment and reticence on the part of high school officials when it comes to releasing test results.

Each high school in Marin County — public, private or parochial — was asked to release information on test scores made by its students in the University of California "Subject A" examination given each May.

The scores were to have been reported in terms of the number who passed and the number who failed. The sampling was to have been from four years in the 1940s and eight years in the 1950s.

There were two exceptions to the general refusal to release information.

Katharine Branson School in Ross, a private college preparatory school with an enrollment of 150 girls, released the scores of its seniors. Only in 1957 were Branson girls recorded among those taking the May test. That year two passed and two failed.

WHY FEW INVOLVED
A possible explanation of the small number to take the University of California's own entrance examination in English composition is that a successful score on the English section of the college board test satisfies the university's Subject A requirement.

The other exception was College of Marin, which sends transfer students to the University of California. The junior college's board of trustees authorized release of the scores. But the scores turned out to be non-existent.

Apparently none of the transfer students took the test at Cal. It is possible for a transfer student to satisfy the university's English composition requirement with a junior college course.

The Subject A examination is used by the University of California to determine if an entering freshman has the "ability to write English without gross errors in spelling, grammar, diction, sentence structure and punctuation," according to the regulations of the university's academic senate.

If a student fails the Subject A examination he must pay $35 to take a non-credit course in English composition. No student may graduate from the university without fulfilling the Subject A requirement.

IN TWO PARTS
The exam has two parts. The first is an "objective" multiple choice test of sentence structure, comprehension of reading, vocabulary, and punctuation. The second section is a composition. Those taking the test are advised to spend at least half of the three-hour test time on the composition.

When Supt. Chester G. Carlisle was asked to release test scores made by seniors at Tamalpais, Redwood and Sir Francis Drake high schools, he referred the request to Robert D. Torrey, director of curriculum and instruction.

Torrey said emphatically that he would recommend that the information not be released.

"This is the cream of our crop," he said of the high school seniors who take the test.

"They have it set up so the top half of our cream get one type of freshman English and the other half another type. I think you'll find over the years that those who pass vary between 47 per cent and 53 per cent," Torrey said.

ALSO PROTESTS
Rev. Lawrence Ryan, principal until this fall of Marin Catholic High School, expressed the same views, except his protest was against the English tests given by College of Marin. He said the students who enter the junior college are not Marin Catholic's top-notch graduates and that it was unfair to expect them to do well on the test. College of Marin uses the University of California's Subject A test forms.

Father Ryan refused to release the test scores made by Marin Catholic students who enter the University of California.

Sister Thomas, principal of Dominican Convent's upper school, said she would write a letter to U.C.'s Committee on Subject A, releasing test scores, but no letter ever arrived.

Dr. E. M. Hinton, superintendent of San Rafael Military Academy, said he would write a letter also, but apparently never did.

After the Tamalpais Union High School District superintendent and his staff refused to release test scores, the district's board of trustees was approached. This was the reply.

"The board decided that the release of the raw data would constitute unsound educational practice and would do a disservice to education in our community. Although the detailed reasoning which supports this general conclusion was presented at the time of your original request, I (Superintendent Carlisle) am pleased to review briefly the basis for the board's decision."

'CERTAIN TO MISLEAD'
"The Subject A examination is a placement test, and any attempt to use the results of the test for other purposes is educationally unsound and almost certain to be misleading. The number of students who actually take the test is far too small a sample of our graduates to have any statistical significance. Moreover, many of the capable students never take the test, either because they are exempted or because they enroll in other colleges and universities which do not require the test. For these, and other reasons, the board has decided against the release of this data."

The trustees of Tomales Joint Union High School District decided likewise. A letter from Ralph Cheda, clerk of the board, said: "The board decided releasing these test results for publication would not serve any useful purpose."

The trustees of Novato Unified School District also refused to release the test results. The number of its seniors who would have taken the test would have been extremely small, since Novato High School graduated its first class only this June.

"In view of the nature of the tests and the action taken by other districts on this same matter, your request was denied," wrote Supt. William J. J. Smith, who acts as secretary to the board of trustees.

LISTS THREE REASONS
The San Rafael Board of Education refused to release test results and gave these three reasons:

"1. The break point between passing and failing is adjusted each year, depending on the group taking the test, and therefore a year-to-year comparison is unrealistic;

"2. The purpose of the examination is to place students in a relative position in English only and is not intended as a measure of over-all student ability;

"3. The number of students from our high school taking the test is too small to be representative of our graduates."

The San Rafael trustees' contention that a "year-to-year comparison is unrealistic" was contradicted by John Halverson, supervisor of Subject A at University of California.

The test is scored with points counting against the student for inaccuracy. Thus, the lower the score, the better—as in a golf game. The objective part of the test is scored on a scale of 100 down to 1; the composition part, on a scale of 10 down to 1. (If the student writes no composition, he gets 10; for an off-subject composition, he gets 9.)

The passing score is adjusted four or five points each year to allow for a varying degree of difficulty of the objective test, Halverson said.

'HUMAN FACTOR'
Halverson acknowledged that a "human factor" enters into grading of the compositions, but he said there were three checks:

1. All readers meet before the examination to grade sample essays together.

2. All borderline papers—those that barely pass and those that fail by a narrow margin—are re-read at least once.

3. Most readers have three to five years experience at reading papers. All are English department graduate students.

The percentage of those who pass the entrance English examination each May has increased slightly in recent years.

Fifty-one per cent passed of the 2,349 who took the test in May 1955; 52 per cent passed out of 2,552 taking the test in May 1956; 53 per cent passed out of 2,399 who took it in May 1957; 55 per cent passed out of 2,538 in May 1958, and 56 per cent of 2,591 passed in May 1959.

The university has a long-standing agreement with secondary schools to withhold test scores made by students of a specific school unless the scores are released by the high school, Halverson said.

He said the reason is to avoid embarrassing a high school and to avoid competition among schools.

Mass Slated For Marine Lieutenant

A Requiem Mass for Lt. Raymond Fred Corrigan, 24, of the Marine Corps, will be offered at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur, following the recitation of the Rosary at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Chapel of the Hills. The funeral cortege will form at the Chapel of the Hills at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Interment will be in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Lieutenant Corrigan, son of Mrs. Carolyn B. Corrigan of 4 Francis avenue, Larkspur, died in an Oakland hospital yesterday after an illness of several months.

He was born in St. Helena, Aug. 22, 1934, and was brought to Larkspur at the age of five. He was graduated from St. Anselm's School, Marin Catholic High School and the University of San Francisco.

Having entered the Marine Corps in 1956, he received his wings as a pilot at Pensacola and was then stationed in Honolulu until returned to this country last April because of illness.

Survivors include three brothers, William G. Corrigan of Mill Valley, Joseph E. Corrigan of Reno, Nev., and Frank P. Corrigan, with the U.S. Information Service in Laos.

Family funeral services for the late George W. Cagwin, Marin County's second oldest resident who died yesterday at the age of 102, will be held Monday at the Memorial chapel of Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

Friends may call at the chapel until 10 p.m. tomorrow, it has been announced.

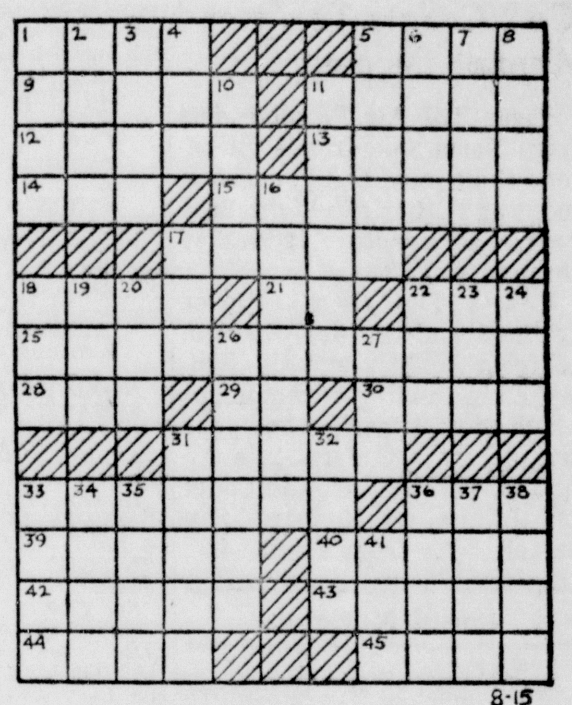

It is requested that memorial contributions be made to the memorial fund of Holy Innocents Church in Corte Madera.

OBITUARIES

Writer Found Dead In Tub At His Home

Pathological tests were being made today to determine the cause of death of Russell B. Porter Jr., 38, whose fully clothed body was found face down in a bathtub of his home at 146 Del Casa drive, Mill Valley, yesterday.

He was a newsman and freelance writer.

Gerald Gooch, deputy coroner, said the face, arms and hands had been severely burned by hot water. He had entered the bathroom only a few seconds earlier and his wife, Beatrice, heard the sound of running water in the tub.

Indications pointed to a heart attack, Gooch said. It is believed that in falling, his body turned on the water faucet.

Porter was born in New York City in 1921 and attended Syracuse University. During World War II he served on American and British merchant marine vessels.

He worked as member of the news staff of the Syracuse Post-Standard for two years, then joined the New York Herald-Tribune where he was news writer, radio reporter and commentator, later working as researcher for a radio quiz show.

Since coming to Marin County two years ago he had done some freelance work in San Francisco and was also working on a book.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Rites Monday For Marin's 2nd Oldest Resident

Family funeral services for the late George W. Cagwin, Marin County's second oldest resident who died yesterday at the age of 102, will be held Monday at the Memorial chapel of Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Aug. 15, the 227th day of the year, with 138 more days in 1959.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning star is Mercury.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Venus. On this date in history:

In 1769, Napoleon Bonaparte was born.

In 1899, Henry Ford quit his job with the Detroit Electric Co. to go into the automobile business.

In 1914, the Panama Canal opened officially to traffic after 10 years of construction.

In 1935, humorist Will Rogers and aviator Wiley Post were killed in an airplane crash.

In 1947, Great Britain ended her 200-year rule over India, and the two sovereign states of India and Pakistan came into existence.

In 1948, the independent Republic of Korea was proclaimed with Seoul named as its capital.

A thought for today: Napoleon Bonaparte said: "From the sublime to the ridiculous is but a step."

Papermill Creek ... Asking $50,000. Make offer

In the olden days the grandchildren drove to the country to visit Grandma and Grandpa. There they found the old swimming hole, large playgrounds, maybe a pony ride. Well, we have just a place with a very attractive rustic cottage with 1 bedroom, large sleeping porch, huge knotty pine living room, big stone fireplace, most of the furniture, big BBQ pit. One of the most restful spots in the country for the tired business man and children. If you are looking for a summer home in Marin, this is it.

One of Ross' finest

$51,000

A beautiful and delightful area and a very charming home. This fine early Ross home has been remodeled and redecorated from kitchen to bath. All rooms are spacious and lovely. The living room is huge and beautiful. A separate dining room, a morning room is the breakfast room, upstairs the master bedroom with dressing room. Small bedroom adjoining. Another large bedroom with porch and sitting room or 4 bedrooms. All this and the most beautiful outdoor area imaginable with many gorgeous trees—75x250 level.

Country Club

$60,000

THE MORNING STAR SAILS AGAIN

The 51-foot schooner Morning Star II heads up the Oregon coast from Tillamook carrying a cargo of cheese. The ship, with a six-ton load and a crew of 12, will sail into the mouth of the Columbia River, then up the river to the Oregon Centennial Exposition at Portland. It is a replica of the original Morning Star built in 1854 to transport Tillamook produce to Portland. (AP Wirephoto)

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Steel Hopes Bleak

DETROIT (AP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald says prospects are bleak for an early settlement of the nationwide steel strike. McDonald, on a tour of Detroit area picket lines yesterday, told newsmen the strike will end when Roger M. Blough, president of U.S. Steel Corp., "decides to end it." Later he told a union rally, "This won't be a short strike."

Demos Meet Up In Air

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whether this city keeps the 1960 Democratic National Convention is still up in the air. Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler and local party officials failed yesterday to iron out a squabble over distribution of convention tickets.

Typhoon Kills 126

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Georgia killed 126 persons in cutting through central Japan yesterday, police reported today.

Brink's Guard Wounded In S. F. Holdup

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two gunmen critically wounded a Brink's guard yesterday in San Francisco's first armored car holdup. They fled with $18,442. The robbery, apparently carefully planned, came as the guard was picking up the day's receipts at the Stonestown Emporium, one of the city's newest department stores.

The bandits, well dressed and wearing sun glasses, escaped in a stolen auto which they quickly abandoned.

CONDITION GRAVE

The guard, Converse Smallwood, 43, is in grave condition at Mission Emergency Hospital with four bullet wounds in his chest, abdomen and an arm.

A Brink's employee for three years, Smallwood spent 20 years in the Army. He has two small children and his wife is expecting a third.

The bandits apparently had learned that Brink's picked up the store's receipts daily at about 3:30 p.m. One Emporium employee told police she saw the bandits sitting quietly in the lobby where the shooting took place, just minutes before the mid-afternoon robbery.

SCREAM OF PAIN

"It sounded like a backfire or some boiler trouble and then we heard a guy screaming in pain," Emporium manager Cecil Edney said.

As Smallwood, moaning, staggered out the rear entrance, the bandits almost panicked. They dashed in opposite directions, one shouting: "Keep out of my way, I've got a gun."

Clutching a tin box — which held $6,442 in cash and about $12,000 in checks — one gunman ran through the store's television section, apparently looking for an exit. Saleswomen ducked under counters as he ran out the door.

The other bandit ran through the liquor section, household furnishings and furniture displays before he doubled back through the television department to the door. The bandits sped away.

Club Schedules 'Family Day'

"Family Day" will be observed by the Meadow Club at Fairfax on Labor Day, Sept. 7, with a series of events starting at noon and continuing through the afternoon.

Lunch will be served at the pool from noon to 1 p.m., followed by 19 swimming races for boys and girls of all ages and eight diving events from 1:30 p.m. There will also be putting contests for fathers with sons and fathers with daughters.

A boy and girl winner of the day will be judged from the 14 to 16-year-old class and their names will be placed on a clubhouse plaque.

A buffet dinner will be served from 5:30 p.m.

Teen-Agers To Dance

A teen-age dance with "live band" music will be given by the Fairfax Recreation Department from 8 p.m. to midnight Tuesday at the Fairfax Pavilion.

Fire Still Burning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Only one major fire continued to wreak destruction in California today.

Almost 600 firefighters were unable to quell a 9,000-acre fire 50 miles northeast of Eureka that has consumed more than five million board feet of fir in Six Rivers National Forest. Value of the timber was estimated at $100,000.

Labor Meet Ends

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The state Federation of Labor ended its annual convention yesterday by condemning southern Democratic congressmen who voted for a strong labor reform bill.

A resolution criticizing the Dixiecrats, by that name, and "reactionary northern Republicans" for supporting the Landrum-Griffin bill backed by President Eisenhower was adopted unanimously by the 2,000 delegates as one of the final acts of the five-day convention.

Shark Bites Man

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A 5½-foot shark which had been boated by two fishermen here yesterday bit one severely when he attempted to remove the hook.

Arthur Wright said the shark lunged and grabbed his hand. The fisherman suffered a cut about 12 inches long extending from his palm to his forearm and several broken fingers.

Nixon Urges Strength

CHICAGO (AP) — A position of strength offers America's greatest hope for reaching agreements with the Soviet Union, says Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

"Strength is the only thing the Russian leaders understand," Nixon said. "I mean military strength. When one side has more strength than the other, you get ultimatums that could lead to war."

Ike To Visit Queen

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower will visit Queen Elizabeth II at Balmoral Castle in the Scottish Highlands during his stay in the United Kingdom, the White House announced today.

It had previously been reported that the President probably would make the visit while he is conferring with British officials Aug. 28 to Sept. 1.

Acting press secretary Wayne Hawks said Eisenhower would spend one night at the castle as the queen's guest.

Million For Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A woman who lived in a hotel here for 55 years has willed $500,000 each to the University of California and Stanford University for cancer research.

The will of Mrs. Blanche Simon, member of a pioneer California family, was filed for probate Friday.

Mrs. Simon took up residence in the St. Frances Hotel when it opened in 1904 and lived there until her death Aug. 7.

Public Works Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early Senate approval appeared likely today for a compromise $1,206,748,549 public works appropriations bill passed by the House.

The measure, adopted by voice vote in the House yesterday, ignores President Eisenhower's plea for "no new starts" and includes money to begin construction of 52 new flood control, rivers and harbors and reclamation projects. The administration had requested $1,176,677,000 for the current fiscal year which began July 1 and had proposed no new projects.

Cohen Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ex-mobster Mickey Cohen ended the eight-day deliberation of a federal court jury yesterday when he suddenly pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of disturbing the peace.

Cohen was fined $200 and court costs by Judge Paul Jones after he pleaded guilty to the lesser charge. He has been accused of assaulting federal narcotics bureau chief Howard Chappell in Chappell's office.

Author's Widow Dies

WEAVERVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. William Sydney Porter, 91-year-old widow of famed short story writer O. Henry, died here yesterday.

Hearing Stated Aug. 27 For Slaying Suspect

Date for a preliminary hearing into the charge that Robert B. Rogers of San Gabriel murdered his wife, Bertie, last week in San Rafael has been set Aug. 27.

The action was taken yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold J. Haley. The hearing will start at 9:30 a.m.

Rogers' attorney, Gregory Stout of San Francisco, said that if the case goes to the preliminary hearing—that is, if Dist. Atty. William O. Weissich gains an indictment from the Marin Grand Jury—he will ask for a setting of bail at the end of the hearing.

Weissich has not indicated whether he will seek a grand jury indictment. Stout said he may request a psychiatric examination for Rogers.

Stout also said that as far as he knows the district attorney does not plan to ask for a lie detector test, but that if Weissich does, he will be in accord. Stout said that he will not initiate action for a lie detector test.

Princess Nine Today

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, youngest member of Britain's royal family, is 9 years old today.

All Quiet In Little Rock, But Trouble Predicted

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Quiet prevailed today in Little Rock but both sides in the integration controversy warned of trouble to come.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said it would not be peaceful here

"for a long, long time." And Mrs. L. C. Bates, Little Rock integration leader, said in Memphis that all Negroes should send telegrams to President Eisenhower to insure "basic protection and freedom from fear of violence."

Despite the statements, however, there were no open signs today of any trouble.

There has been no disorder connected with the first three days of integration at Central and Hall high schools since police stopped a threatening segregationist march on Central Wednesday with fire hoses and billy clubs.

Jefferson Thomas, 18, attended Central, scene of mob violence in 1957, and Effie Jones, Elsie Robison and Estella Thompson studied with white students at Hall High for the third straight day yesterday. It was a day without incident at both places. Police watched Central but were not needed.

But segregation leaders were still angry at Little Rock police for their forceful dispersal of about 500 persons near Central Wednesday.

There were indications the segregationist Capital Citizens Council would try legally to charge Chief of Police Gene Smith with police brutality.

Mass Meeting Held Today By Teamsters

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Striking teamsters were called into a mass meeting today to draft new contract proposals for submission to trucking and distribution firms in San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

The 6,500 members of Teamster Local 85 have been on strike against employers represented by the California Trucking Assn. and the Draymen's Assn. since Aug. 7.

Layoffs in other industries continued, but truck cargoes moved freely into San Francisco from East Bay warehouses yesterday. This resulted from union and police enforcement of a superior court injunction against roving pickets.

Indignant Gate Bridge Directors Claim I-J News Story Was Untrue

Indignant directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and highway District yesterday charged the Independent-Journal with "printing an untruth" and insisted that they had acted courteously to a representative of a Marin commuters club a month ago.

Marin Director Leland Murphy opened the attack on this newspaper by saying that he likes "fair criticism, but I don't like untruths." He said that he "might even go farther, but wouldn't."

Specifically, he said, he referred to an article which appeared after Thomas D. Hardcastle, secretary-treasurer of the Novato Commuters Club, appeared before the bridge board's finance committee meeting July 12. Hardcastle charged, as reported in the I-J the following day, that he had been discourteously treated and not allowed to finish a statement he was making regarding the time limit placed on newly issued commutation toll books.

Murphy said he was there when Hardcastle appeared and "he shouldn't have been allowed to speak in the first place; he was out of order." Hardcastle was allowed to talk, however, Murphy said.

and "he was there when a motion was made to help the commuters." Subsequent action, Murphy pointed out, extended the time limit to the commuters' benefit.

"We gave him courteous treatment, but I don't think he treated the board courteously," Murphy went on. "I feel the general manager should write a letter to the Independent-Journal and present the facts. The paper printed an untruth."

President Dan London was about to refer the matter to the finance committee for consideration of the letter, but Murphy objected. He moved that the board order the letter written immediately.

San Francisco Director Ben Lerer also felt the article "was an affront to the board. It was reverse of the facts. That was a budget meeting of the finance committee, long and involved. No other matters were to be considered. For Hardcastle to come up without an appointment was an imposition. He was allowed to speak and given every courtesy." However, Lerer was concerned about "digging up something" already dead.

London insisted it should go back to committee, but committee chairman William D. Hade-ler suggested the letter come from the board instead.

"The statement in the paper was completely wrong," he insisted, "but newspapers like to publish the dramatic, not the constructive. I told Hardcastle before the meeting it shouldn't come up, but we heard him anyway and took action. Hardcastle likes to make a dramatic story out of everything."

Second Marin Director Matt Graham took responsibility for Hardcastle being there. "He called me up, I told him the whole matter had been referred to the finance committee and when that committee would meet."

Murphy called for a vote on his motion. A smattering of ayes were heard and London rapped the gavel that the motion had passed.

But Del Norte Director Herbert Feheley objected that he hadn't had a chance to vote "no" and wanted to be so recorded. He said it has "all gone by," noting that "today's newspaper is tomorrow's bonfire."

San Francisco Director Dan Del Carlo also called the whole thing "ridiculous," and asked to be recorded against writing the letter. Then a number of other directors chimed in also.

Murphy finally asked for a roll call on his motion, although the president already had declared it carried. Only Murphy, Lerer, Phillips Davies of San Francisco and L. E. Castner of Sonoma voted "aye."

The motion lost 9 to 4 and no letter will be written to the Independent-Journal.

THIRD SPUTNIK STILL WHIRLING IN OUTER SPACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today marks the 15th month in orbit for Russia's Sputnik III.

When Sputnik III and its 2,925 pounds of scientific instruments were launched May 15, 1958, trackers in this country figured it would die some time in late February or early March, 1959.

Later they changed their date-of-death estimate to Aug. 15, 1959. Sputnik III's end definitely is approaching, but it will not come today.

Trackers at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory in Cambridge, Mass., now figure the curtain will fall around Dec. 3.

Sputnik III has, according to a space scientist here, produced "quite fabulous scientific results."

WORKS ON DOGS

Tooth Glue May Mark End For Dental Plates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of a "tooth glue" that might eventually eliminate the need for dental plates and bridges was reported today by Navy medical researchers.

Other possibilities:

Take a tooth out, fill it, glue it back in; extract teeth that need straightening, glue them back in neat order; perhaps repair broken bones.

Experiments with dogs indicate that after a tooth is pulled, the original tooth or an artificial substitute can be reinserted in the socket with the new cementing substance.

Capt. Thomas J. Canty described the development. He is director of the Prosthetics Research Laboratories of the Navy hospital at Oakland, where the research is under way.

Canty is in Washington to report on the development to high Navy officials. He gave a reporter the details in an interview.

Canty said a dog now sports a tooth that was glued in about a year ago. The doctor said the pooch was able to eat the day after the dental glue job.

The researcher stressed that no dental glue studies have yet been made on humans, nor is the Navy making any claims that the technique will work on man. But he added "the animal work looks very promising for possible human application."

"If the technique should prove successful on humans," he said, "you could have a full set of teeth extracted and then replace them with synthetic teeth, or teeth from a tissue bank, which could be secured in the jaw without need for the usual dental plate which is uncomfortable for some people. It also should be less expensive."

"A tooth requiring a filling could be taken out, filled and then reinserted in the socket."

"Or, you might need to have your teeth straightened. Such teeth could be extracted and realigned in their sockets."

He said the "glue" is actually made up of materials that go to make up human bone.

GOOSE BARNACLE (Mitella Polymerus)—These barnacles have thick, dark-colored, muscular stalks or "necks" terminated by white, scale-like plates which do not grow together solidly. Great masses of them of all sizes, up to several inches in length, cover wave-washed rocks or driftwood. If you watch barnacles closely you will see their feeler-like appendages thrust out, sweeping water and the food particles it carries into the shell opening. Hundreds of years ago sailors thought geese grew from these beaked shells, so we still call them Goose Barnacles! (From "Out-of-Doors in Marin," copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

Finds It Better To Declare War On Power Mower Before It Does

Recently I ran across an article in "The Carpenter" on the menace of power lawn mowers with which I heartily agree. For my money they are the modern curse of the turf.

According to the statistics quoted this labor-saving (?) device for barbering shaggy fescues into well-groomed crew cuts bodes well to rival the automobile in weekend casualties.

Some 50,000 toes, it is said, will be neatly sliced, quartered or injured during 1959. Another 18,000 careless mower drivers will have their hands and fingers converted to cold cuts. Still more will be struck by flying shrapnel — rocks, wire, bones, scrap metal and children's toys—picked up by the rapidly revolving blades and spewed out with devastating results.

Most of this damage is inflicted by the popular rotary type gasoline mowers which sound something like an anaemic hotrod and develop a startling number of r.p.m. in their choppers. They are involved in 80 per cent of all lawn accidents.

I don't know what it is about lawns — a man will spend hours, days and weeks spading, leveling, tamping, rolling, seeding, fertilizing, watering and nursing a plot 10 by 15 feet, and sit on his porch with a beebie gun to shoe away the birds who thought he was holding open house. When the first green shoots appear the first thing he does is take off for the hardware store to buy a contraption meant for manicuring a sward five times as large.

This will cost him anywhere from $70 to $150, depending upon whether he wants adjustable cutters, one piece aluminum hardtop, shock absorbers, automatic governor or white sidewall tires. It will take him two hours to read and understand the directions, two more for tinkering, and end up by saving maybe 15 minutes on each cutting over the old hand type mower.

It used to be that on a Sunday morning, you'd come gently awake with hearing a lawn-mower in the hands of an early riser next door, then be lulled back to sleep with its soft whirring. What you're apt to hear now is like the barking of an outboard motor on Clear Lake. One fellow I know, still half asleep, groped for his bathing suit and ran out the front door for a dip, thinking he was still on his vacation.

First experience I ever had with a power mower was several years ago when my neighbor moved away and left me one big enough to trim a golf course. It had a heavy drive roller which moved it along by itself so you didn't have to push, only steer.

Only trouble was it weighed 200 pounds and the clutch was broken beyond repair. Once the motor was started it took off in gear and you didn't dare stop it until you'd mowed the whole lawn. To keep it from stalling it was necessary to give it plenty of gas and this moved it so fast you had to run to keep up and guide it.

We only had 3,000 square feet of grass, dotted with trees and water faucets which had to be skirted in loops and figure eights. The entire neighborhood used to turn out yelling, "Ride 'im, cowboy!" and make bets on whether I could keep it on course or would be left at the halfway mark.

After losing 20 pounds weight, shearing off two spigots and part of the hedge and having it turn and chase me up a tree, I gave up and sold it for five bucks. You can see why I don't have a power mower on the place. We went back to the old fashioned kind and haven't had any trouble since.

It even has a sort of remote control.

My son pushes it and I sit and watch him.

Man Could Be Wiser, More Truthful

Mathew Hansen, Philosopher At 86 Strives For Constant Improvement

By DONALD G. DAVIS

"Yes we do know where we are going," said Mathew Hansen.

Hansen, 86, is trying to do his "little part" in saying who put us here, why we are here and where we are going.

He is less particularly interested in the facts that he was born on the Danish island of Bornholm in the Baltic Sea, that he was a landscape gardener for nearly a half century and that he arrived in California just in time to experience the San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

This gentleman, who is more interested in philosophic and religious thought and the beauty of nature, would have man become wiser and more truthful.

This man hides his four-score years in more ways than one. He doesn't appear to be heading for age 90. And he doesn't act like a man of 86. He obviously is discontented with himself. He seeks constant improvement. And now, after having learned several other languages, he has tackled Russian. He is learning it at a night class at the College of Marin.

In his search for a way to tell his fellow man where he is going, Hansen writes. You will not find "Mr. Jones and His Maker," or "John Smith and His Search for The Superman" on the best-seller lists or "Drops of Poetry" and "The Miracle Mile" (both volumes of poetry) quoted in the slick magazines.

The writings were not intended for such lists or for the pages that tell the story of how Mary and John had an argument, then worked out their differences and lived happily ever after.

The writings on the other hand are not for a select audience. They are for every one—everyone who wishes to think.

Hansen, sometimes called the "poet of the Miracle Mile," signs his works with these letters—P.S. It's just like the initials signed by many a great and learned man.

And they mean "Poor Sap."

If he has been asked once, he has been asked a hundred times what it means, and when his questioner is told it is his "honorary or dishonorary degree" further explanation is in order.

Perhaps the best of explanation comes from a chapter devoted to P.S. in "Mr. Jones and His Maker."

Here is an excerpt:

"Then silence reigned for a few minutes. Finally Bill said, 'Tell us, what does P.S. stand for?' They expected that it stood for some skyscraping, extra-mundane, inter-stellar, rocketing appellation and fortified their mental poise to receive it. The face of P.S. lighted up with a quiet joy as he said, 'P.S. stands for Poor Sap.'

"By this time he had won the respect of all his listeners and someone said, no, it could not be . . . (and P.S. goes on to say:)

"I have been with many learned (and also unlearned) men in different parts of the world, and am ashamed of mankind for its honorary degree-hunting ambitions. Some of the least deserving seem to sling it around and hit the unwary and innocent bystander the hardest with their egotistically laden guns.

"Sometimes when confronted by scholarly snobbishness, I have been able to make it ashamed when insisting that I be addressed with my full honorary degree of P.S."

In discussing his life, Hansen very likely will conduct a question-and-answer soliloquy. Here is an example:

Q. Where did you first see the light of day?

A. On Bornholm.

Q. Where is that?

A. In the middle of the Baltic.

Q. Why did you choose to enter the cosmos there?

A. I had no choice.

Q. Are boys welcome there?

A. Yes.

Q. What do they call a boy?

A. Horro, but in the rest of Denmark it's dreng. In Sweden it's gosse, in Norway gut, in England a boy is always a boy, in France a garçon, in Spain a muchacho, in Italy a ragazzo, in Germany a knabe, and in Russia a malchek.

Q. I see you read in nine different languages. Quite an accomplishment! Considering that in this country Johnny can not even read one, why do you take it upon yourself the burden of so much language study?

A. Well, the great drama on this globe always has been played by the nations. When you understand a nation's language, it is a great stride towards understanding its problems and aspirations.

It is further brought out in this self-conducted interview the fate of the nations will come from "investigation in the world's best seller"—the Bible.

Has the Almighty agreed to let the nations destroy each other? This question, Hansen answers by saying, "The outcome is compared to the great harvest where the wheat is gathered into garners and the tares are burned."

Hansen said it is his chief interest in life to save as much wheat for the garner as possible, and that is why he writes.

Sharing his life for 50 years has been his wife, Charlotte, and together they have been through sickness and health and happiness.

The courtship started in Australia.

But the beginning of Hansen's story—his chronological biography—goes back before that to Bornholm.

His father was a landscape gardener and an amateur botanist, and that is where Hansen started to learn his trade. Later he studied at a horticultural college and then was appointed head gardener on a Danish nobleman's estate.

It is work that has kept him healthy and firm, and far younger looking than his 86 years. "When people ask me my age and I tell them, they say, 'You don't look like it,' and I say, 'Well, maybe I look only 85½.'"

There were nine children, and Hansen was one of five boys, but he has heard nothing of them, and has never returned to Denmark. One brother, Ole, settled in Ameri-

PROFILE OF THE WEEK—Mathew Hansen and his wife have been married for 50 years after a courtship that started in Australia. Though he has been a landscape gardener for nearly as long, Hansen has spent his free time in writings and is ca for a time, and he is the one who invited Mathew to search for his fortune in California.

"At 21, I went to England for six months to work in gardens and nurseries. I didn't know English too well, but I knew enough to tip my hat before a prospective employer," he said. "But instead of greeting the man with 'Good Morning,' I said 'Goodby,' but I got the job anyway."

"Then I went to Germany and Austria and Switzerland and Italy and France. It was one of my most wonderful trips."

"I walked from Vienna to Germany and to Switzerland and over the Alps. I was sitting outside the Saint Gotthard tunnel (the pass over the Alps at this point is almost 7,000 in altitude) when the train passed by."

"The passengers on the train stuck their heads out the windows and said with awe, 'There's Saint Gotthard! There's Saint Gotthard!' And just then their train passed into the tunnel. They went under the mountain, but I walked over it—and it cost me less money and I saw more than they did!"

Later, he walked along the shores of the Mediterranean, and stopped at Monte Carlo ("I didn't try to get in the casino.) and Nice. I was looking for a job, but I didn't get one and decided to walk back home to the Baltic Sea."

Hansen then went to England for three years, but he was not satisfied with himself. "I thought maybe if I went as far away as I could I could learn to be a little better chap."

The farthest point he could think of (he didn't want to go to the Orient) was New Zealand, and after commuting, as it were, back and forth between there and Australia he settled on the latter.

He was approximately 28 years old when he took on the job of laying out an estate and planting orchards of peaches, oranges, apricots and apples in an area out in the country from Sydney.

Hansen's brother Ole was living in Stockton, and urged him to come to America. "About this time I met this girl, and we decided," he said, "we would get married. I would go to America first, then she would follow."

But before Hansen could get settled in America, he was to witness one of history's worst earthquakes and fires.

He arrived in San Francisco April 12, 1906. Two days later as the early-morning tremor shook the city, Hansen was already up and about. He already had a ticket for ship passage to Los Angeles, and he stayed aboard the ship for two days before it sailed.

Finally he joined his brother and they went to Washington and started a farm. Charlotte moved to Washington in 1907 where she took a job in Tacoma. The farm didn't work out—there just wasn't enough of a market for tomatoes and strawberries. Ole went back to Denmark, and Hansen went to San Francisco.

Then he returned to Tacoma, married Charlotte in 1909 and together they went to Mexico to sell books.

After the hard work and poor soil of Puget Sound, Hansen was due for two more severe setbacks.

First, he contracted dysentery, and just as he was recovering, the bank that held their funds failed.

"I still had a little strip of land near Sonoma and we had friends there so we went back from Mexico City. In 1912 we moved to Marin and have been here ever since."

About six years ago Mathew Hansen retired from his gardening chores and lending his special touch to many a Marin landscape, but he did not retire his mind.

He and Mrs. Hansen admit they are getting old, but they are not at the end of the road.

Hansen has an understanding for natural beauty and the beauty that comes from God and from men's minds.

It is about these things he thinks and writes in his loft-like study where the plainness of his surroundings are adorned with pictures of lakes and forests and trees.

He cannot agree with the pessimist, because he believes man must prepare for "his next act on earth, he must know where he is going."

He is what his neighbors would call an amazing man. He began writing in his seventies. He has tackled poetry.

He is a modest man who snips off his head from his photos in newspaper clippings. "Looks better without the head," he says.

Mathew Hansen knows where he is going.

CLIFF HANGER POOL — The steeply sloping site of the Robert H. Eschen garden at 9 Pepper way in San Rafael seemed anything but a likely locale for a pool. Landscaped architect William Kapranos solved the problem with a cliff-hanging construction for pool, tied to a wood bulkhead.

Have You No Place For A Pool?

Robert Eschens Solved Problem
 By Installing A 'Cliff-Hanger'

The problem of many of Marin's hillside lots is that they have no place for a swimming pool — or at least appear to have none. The Robert H. Eschen problem, as solved by William Kapranos, creates a pool site in much the same way that home sites are created.

Literally, the pool is a cliff hanger. The illusion of a level lot was created by fill, but the pool was footed on the natural contour. A wooden bulkhead, built beyond the outer edge of the pool and "tied" to the concrete, acts as retaining wall for fill, part of which is covered with paving tile.

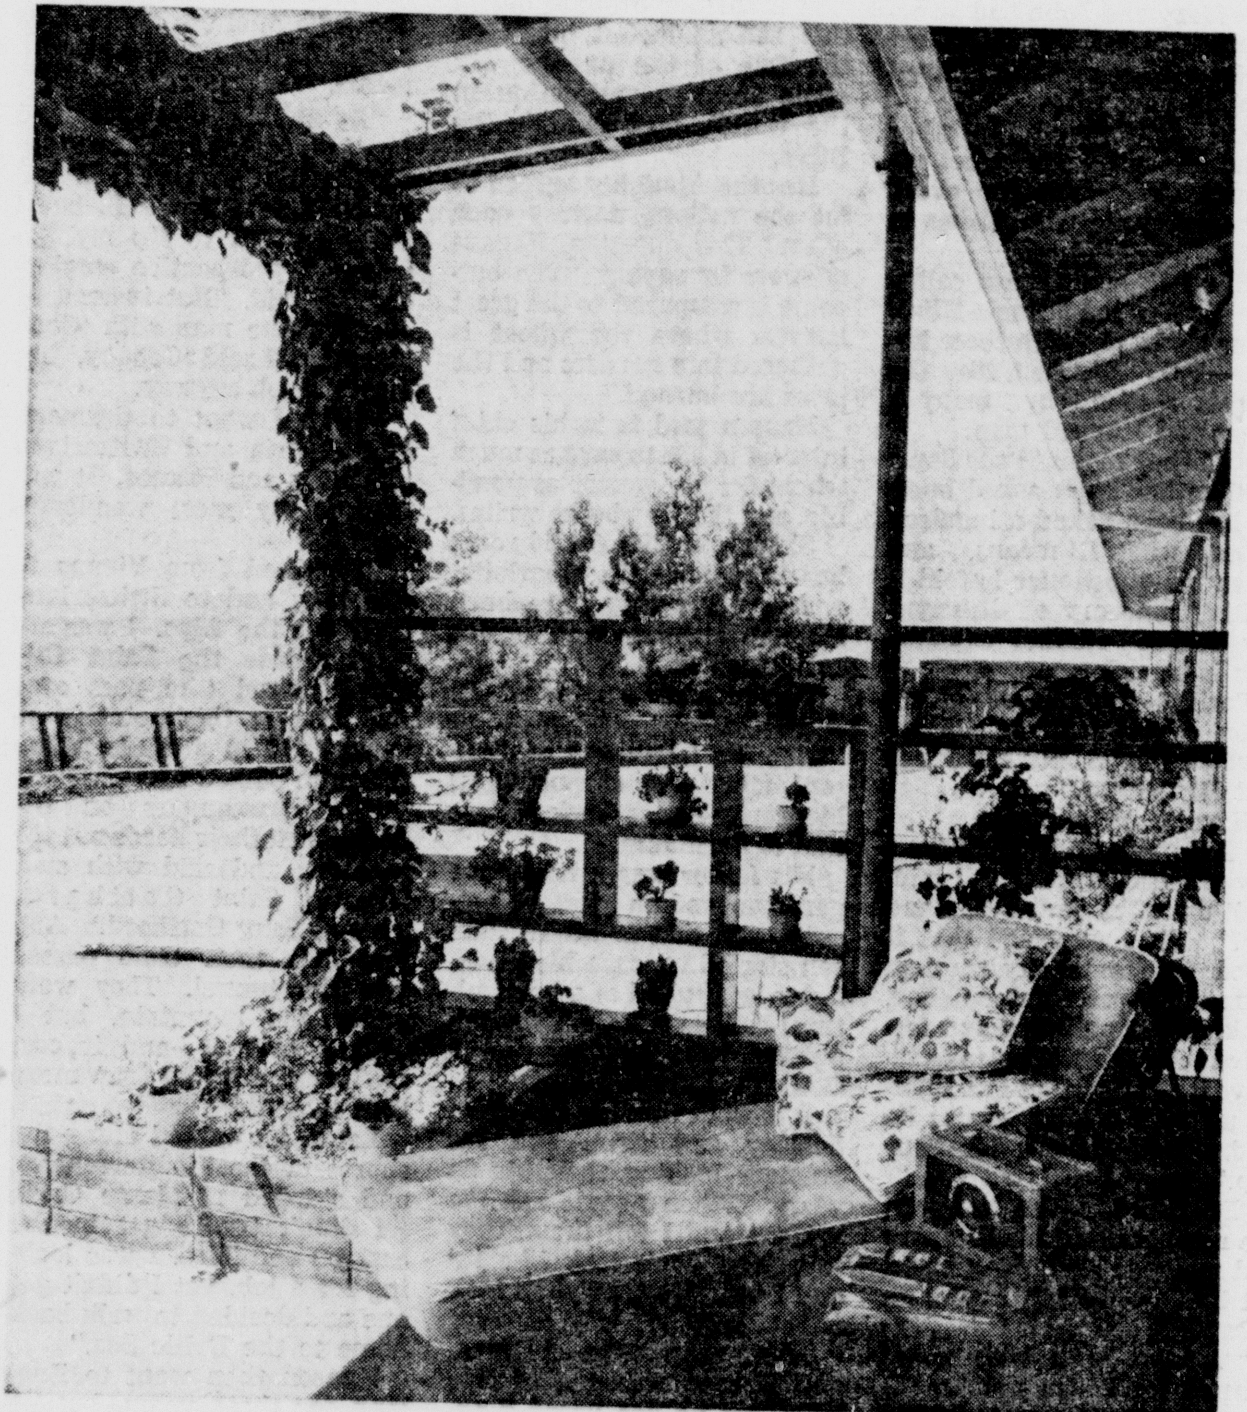

The choice of a tile surface was intentional — literally to allow for settling of the new surface. The tiles were bedded in sand, the level of which could be raised with no more effort than lifting the loose tiles and shoveling on another layer of sand.

The hillside site at 9 Pepper way in San Rafael's Fair-hills area had a commanding view — and winds which so often accompany same. A windbreak at the breezy end not only backs outdoor benching, but provides a design link with the front entrance fence and the lanai roof, also paneled in reed.

LANAI — Sun-shy bathers may retreat from the brunt of midday rays under a reed-roofed shelter lacyly framed by ivy.

STEREO

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

WHY A COMPONENT SYSTEM?

When top quality individual units are properly combined by your COMPONENT DEALER, you can be assured of having the finest stereo high fidelity sound your budget dollar can buy.

Words of Caution: "Buy your components from a reputable dealer in your area who has adequate years of experience, and display facilities (wired to be demonstrated and compared) to insure that you can make a proper choice within your budget. With stereo, you need the engineering consultation, technical guidance, and the engineering service facilities of your audio engineer or specialist to get top hum-free performance. The surest way to obtain a top quality component system and these services, is to buy at regular prices and stay clear of the store that can exist only by selling at a discount, and then leaving the mess in your hands. You can't afford it."

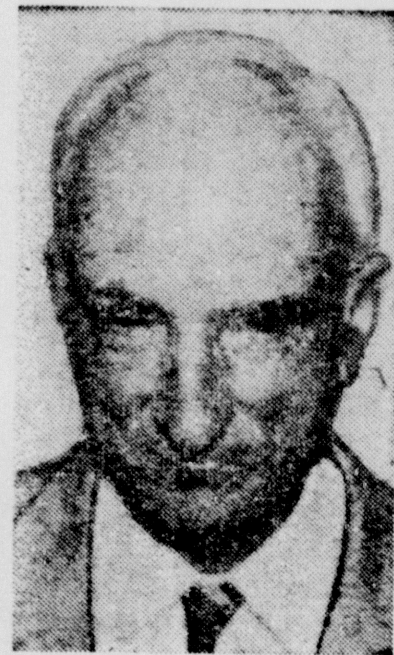

Visit our Stereo Hi-Fi store and ask for a demonstration of COMPONENT STEREO. This month we are offering an attractive special composed of top quality units. See our window display and come in and listen.

LEO L. STANLEY, M.D.

Second of a series of features and historical studies written by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, who was for many years chief medical officer at San Quentin Prison. Dr. Stanley has written several articles and his book, "Men At Their Worst," was published in 1940.

San Quentin's Sammy Plays Host

He Borrows Bucks, Borrows Tux Entertains Queen, Then Ducks

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

"Lend me $35. I've got to be in Seattle right away. Big deal!"

Sammy Stanich put the bee on his Chicago mouthpiece, a lawyer who had profited by defending at reasonable fees many of Sammy's violations of the law.

With the borrowed money and a parole board permit to leave the state temporarily in his pockets, Sammy took the next train to Seattle. Was it a coincidence that Queen Marie of Rumania was to be in the city at the same time?

I HAD KNOWN Eliot "Sammy" Stanich, alias Stint Lepescue, since 1924 when he had come to San Quentin for violation of Penal Code 538, the removal and sale of mortgaged property.

At that time he claimed he was born in Serbia in 1895, and from 1914 to 1919 he had been in the French army. And later, he said, he had worked as a camera man, gardener and waiter. He came to America in 1920 and was employed by the movie studios in various capacities.

Later he promoted shows and entertainments, all of which were of a questionable nature. He became involved in phony checks and began taking liberties with other people's property. Eventually he took abode in the Little Gray Home in the West.

On release from San Quentin he managed to rent a vacant theater and showed a film called "Is Your Daughter Safe?" The picture itself was innocent but Sammy's advertising made it appear sensuous and not to be viewed by innocent eyes.

FINALLY California fields became exhausted and he went to Chicago. There he went broke. The loan from his lawyer brought him back to the Pacific Coast.

Once in Seattle, Sammy's first step was to look up all the Rumanians in town. When he had reached every one he told them:

"Folks, your great and noble queen will soon be in our midst. For the honor of Rumania you must do all in your power to make her visit a pleasant one. Let's get up a big benefit for the Rumanian Orphans and invite the Queen. Three rousing cheers."

IT WORKED. The manager of the President Theater was persuaded to cooperate and agreed to feature the Queen's appearance as an interlude in the current show. The proceeds were to be split 50-50 between the orphans of Rumania and Sammy.

Stanich wired a glowing invitation to Queen Marie, who was enroute to Seattle, persuading her to honor them by her high and august presence at a benefit for Rumanian orphans, the poor and friendless children of her deceased subjects.

This message was directed to Samuel Hill of the Northern Pacific railroad, who was striving to act as Queen Marie's mentor aboard the Seattle-bound train.

"Her Majesty graciously accepts your invitation," came the reply. And she was as good as her word. Accompanied by her children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Illeana and her entourage, she was met by Sammie Stanich in a borrowed tuxedo at the already-filled theater. He escorted them to the flower-decked stage box where the Queen was greeted with cheers and the playing of the Rumanian national hymn. Sammy sat beside her.

THE QUEEN sat while the play proceeded. But after 20 minutes she was seen to rise.

With members of her party following, she walked out of the theater as imposingly as she had come.

"What did I do then?" Sammy answered the questioning. "Why, I went to the box office and got my share of the benefit proceeds. I cleared just $900."

The last time I saw Sammy Stanich was in 1955 when he made a social call at my office in San Rafael. He was aging and suffering from asthma and heart disease.

But he still had a sense of humor and gleefully recalled his meeting with Queen Marie and the successful benefit for the Rumanian orphans.

SQUIRREL AND SEQUEL

He was a lovely bit of fluff
With bright eyes, bushy tail and all,
And we could never get enough
Of his quaint antics on the wall.
We fondly named him Little Joe,
And fed him such delicacies
That Little Joe did grow and grow,
Outshining brother refugees.
But came a day of great surprise,
A happening quite unforeseen,
When Joe lost his obese disguise!
— But how we love our Josephine!

warden's office. Then he flew up over the prison walls to give the inmates a look at a flying machine. Prison's jute boat landed at dock in foreground. (Photos Courtesy of Dr. Stanley)

And Wings Over Prison Walls

In 1913, when I first came to San Quentin, very few airplanes had flown over the prison. Inmates had only seen aircraft in magazines and picture books. And, in truth, I had only seen a few myself.

There had been an airshow at Tanforan only a few years before. A Frenchman, Paulhan, had flown his biplane and Farman had gone up in a bird-like monoplane, much to the wonder and amazement of the gathered multitude. Some of us medical students had journeyed by streetcar to see this phenomenal exhibit.

One morning in 1914 the inmates were given a double treat. Madam Sarah Bernhardt put on a show for them in the lower yard, and Silas Christofferson had flown over in his crate-like biplane.

HE LANDED in the little cove below the warden's office. There was some difficulty in taking off again, but he circled over the tops of the walls to give the boys a view of his flying machine.

The prisoners got another thrill in 1919 when Art Smith, the sensational young aviator from the Panama Pacific International Exhibition, visited the prison and gave the prisoners a talk on his exploits.

Art flew every evening from the lawn at the Marina in a brilliantly lighted plane. And while in the air he looped-the-loop and did other thrilling stunts. It was about this time that Lincoln Beach made a landing on the battleship Pennsylvania anchored out in the Bay.

About this time a gay young blade frequently came over to San Quentin. He was much interested in the daughter of Captain of the Guard Ellis. He always enjoyed the gatherings and the social functions put on by the officers and guards and their families.

He particularly enjoyed the May Day picnics at Paradise Cove and the boat trip with the families on the old stern-wheeler "Caroline," which brought supplies to the prison and took away the jute bags.

THIS YOUNG MAN was Ernie Smith. He later attained fame as pilot of the first civilian airplane to fly from San Francisco to Hawaii.

He and Emory Bronte in their crude plane flew across the ocean toward Honolulu. When they sighted land, their fuel gave out. They landed in the trees on Molokai. But they had made it.

I see Ernie, now an executive of an aviation company, occasionally at the Press and Union League Club, San Francisco. We smile at reminiscences of our early San Quentin days.

Bronte was one of my patients at Treasure Island when I was in charge of the Sick Officers' quarters in 1945.

Out at the Beach in San Francisco a young aviator had a small biplane in which he took a passenger aloft to see the city for a nominal fee. This was one of those crates with the pilot and passenger way out in front without benefit of cabin. This young man's father unfortunately had been sent to San Quentin. He became my hospital secretary. As a special favor to me the father arranged that his son should take me for a ride in his airplane. This was my first time in the air.

After being strapped into the open seats, we made a good take-off and at an elevation of about two thousand feet flew above Golden Gate Park. Gaining altitude, the pilot, looking at me, indicated that we would do the loop-the-loop, with a circular motion of his arm. And we did. I never realized that San Francisco had so many cemeteries. They showed up more distinctly from the air than on the ground. Many of these have now been displaced by subdivisions.

Back at home I was thoroughly chastized and reprimanded by my young wife for having risked my life in such a fragile contraption.

A MOTION PICTURE company wanted to take pictures of San Quentin from the air. For some reason, photographing the institution was not allowed. That was in the days of World War I and could have been attributed to security reasons. The warden gave orders to shoot any aircraft that might fly over the buildings.

In one of our towers was a rather irresponsible young man named Ole Olson who believed in carrying out orders. He was far from being a good marksman, and could not hit the side of a barn. Ole, turning his head away, emptied his six-shooter at the speeding plane above. Yes, one bullet did pierce the gas tank. The aircraft was forced to come down in a marsh about a mile away.

"Sharpshooter Olson" could never live down his prowess as a marksman.

Hamilton Air Force Base is now located within a few miles of the prison. Some of the inmates complain that their peace of mind is disturbed by the numerous jet planes that fly over and occasionally break the sound barrier.

THAT SAME DAY the great actress Sarah Bernhardt put on a show for the boys in the lower yard of the prison. Here, Dr.

Stanley's inside secretary, back to camera, extends a greeting to Madam Bernhardt, center, in costume.

ALL NEW with a dressed up front entrance is the way Stinson Beach State Park now looks to the picnicker and beach bather when he drives up to the main entrance.

These improvements are only a part of what's in the plans for the state park. New entrance boasts garden areas, new roads, signs, gate and flagpole.

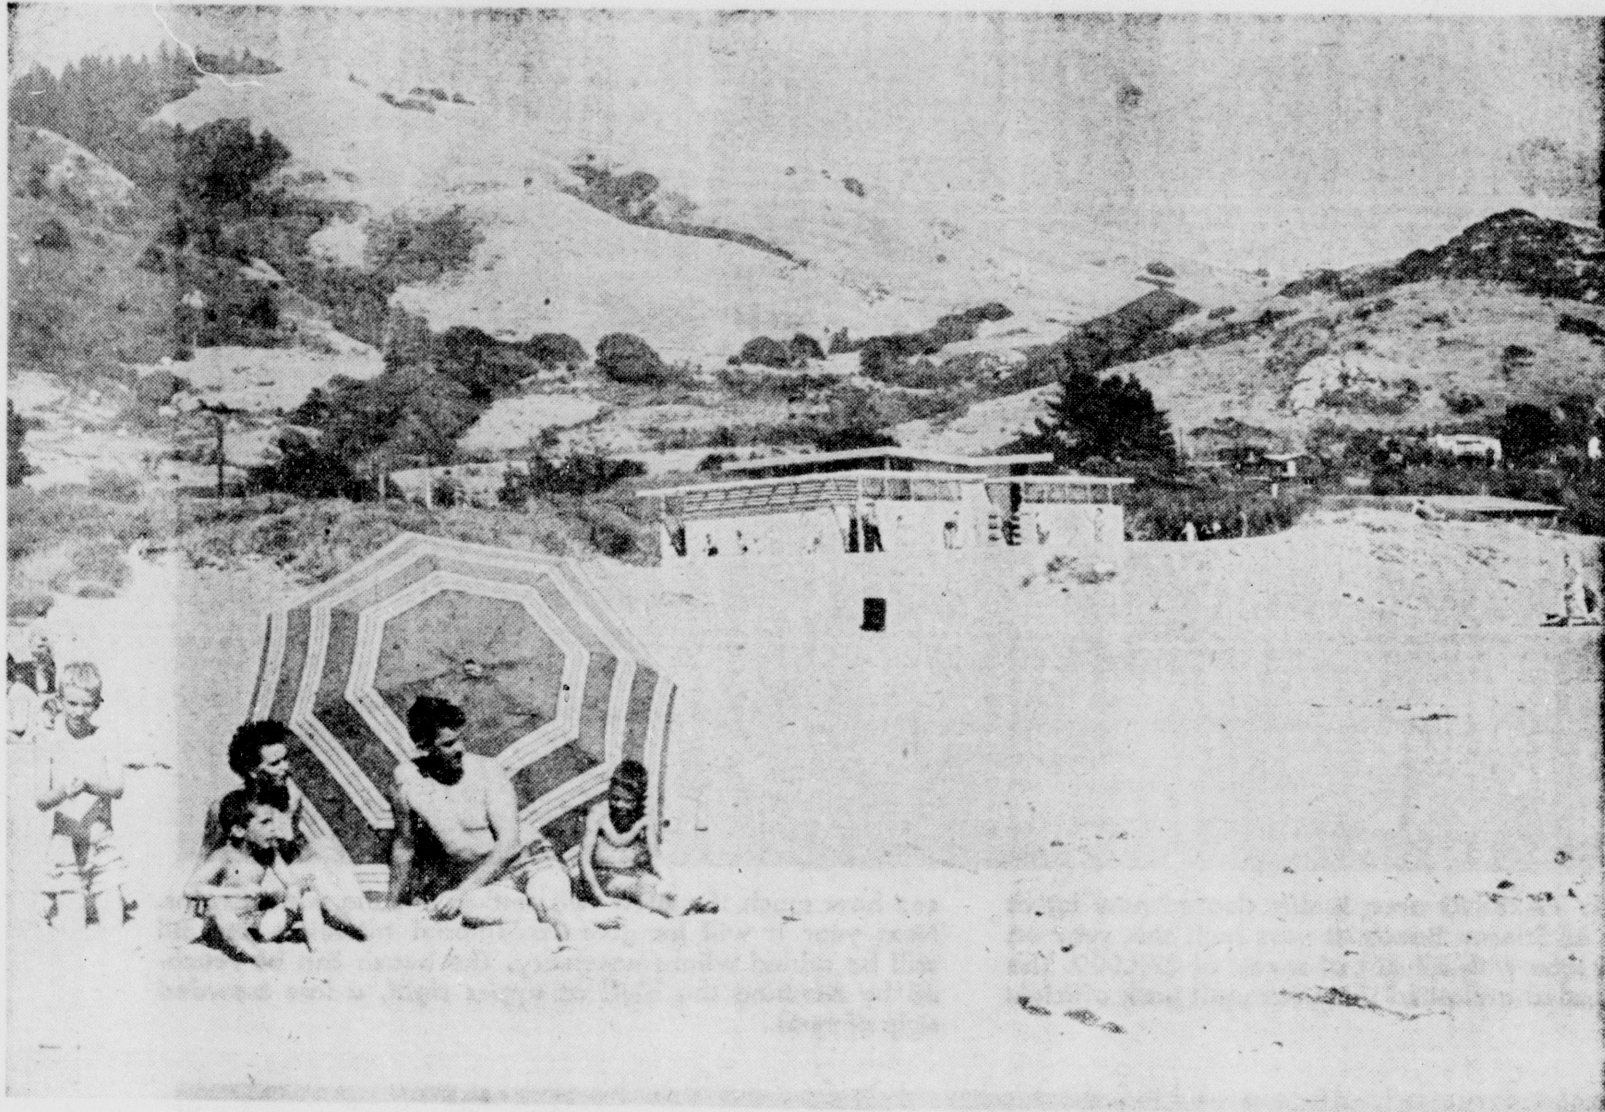

YOU PAY YOUR MONEY and take your choice of hundreds of parking spaces in the new graded areas near the beach. Here Ranger Al Vestal takes the park fee of 50 cents per car and hands driver a pass good for one day in the park. Several rangers are on duty all day, provided by the State Division of Beaches and Parks. New entrance station is built of yellowish colored bricks with light wood trim. (Independent-Journal photos)

New Facilities Draw Families

BRIGHT SUN pours down on families who are spending a summer day at Stinson Beach State Park. In background is new beach house constructed this year and opened in June.

There swimmers may rinse surf and sand from themselves and inside they may don street clothes again in one of many dressing rooms.

CHECKING THE regulations posted on a new state-park-type sign are Deborah Weinholtz of Stinson Beach, standing, and her friend Barbara Henke of Orland, holding picnic lunch bag. This sign greets visitors just beyond entrance gate as road curves past it to the left.

YOUNG AND OLDSTERS alike like to dig for small crabs on the beach. This group is spending the day on the sand and will be in need of shower facilities when it comes time to go home. In rear is old Seadowns restaurant where soft drinks and sandwiches are available.

SPACIOUS NEW PARKING area is this cleared new lot at the south end of Stinson Beach. It was built this year on site of old salt lake with fill dirt at a cost of $79,000. The surface was graded and oiled this year until park officials see how much the area will settle with the winter rains. Next year it will be given additional attention and fill will be added where necessary. The beach can be reached by climbing the bluff at upper right, a less crowded strip of sand.

MORE FUN THAN playing in the sprinklers at home, kids say of the new shower facilities at Stinson. Mothers are finding the showers a great boon for rinsing the sand off their youngsters who can't seem to "stay clean a minute" on the sand. Lower faucet at left allows smaller members of the family to shower too.

NEW BEACH HOUSE is built of attractive sand colored brick with light blue tile sides where showers are placed. The V-shaped roof is a subdued orange shade. There are six regular showers, two small-fry ones, and a drinking fountain on each side of the shower and water drains away and prevents puddling. Small stand, at left, is for short tots who want a drink of water.

A Bigger, Cleaner Park

A favorite place for picnicking and surf swimming for Marin and Bay Area families has always been Stinson Beach. Now in the height of its summer season, Stinson Beach State Park can accommodate more beach bathers, cars and picnickers than ever before.

An improvement program partly finished in June has given the park a new look with more improvements planned for next year. The Division of Beaches and Parks purchased the Seadowns property, for $125,000 to close the final gap in the middle of the park property.

A new entrance has been built and the roads extended and improved. New signs are up and attendant rangers, as usual, are on hand to help persons at the park.

The former car entrance has been closed to autos and opened only to pedestrians. A huge new parking lot costing $79,000 has been graded and oiled, and plans are underway for further improvements after the area is left to settle through the winter rains. It is fill land and expected to shift to some extent.

Other improvements include the sparkling $35,000 beach house situated on the dunes just up from the surf. There a swimmer can rinse off persistent sand and salt water. Inside are dressing rooms and lavatory facilities. Another such beach house is planned for the beach farther south.

Ultimate plans call for parking area for 840 cars. Also another 50 picnic units were added this year.

The units are sprinkled between the parking areas and in the willows that line the beach bluffs.

Overnight camping has been abandoned to allow more room for day campers and the park closes at 10 p.m.

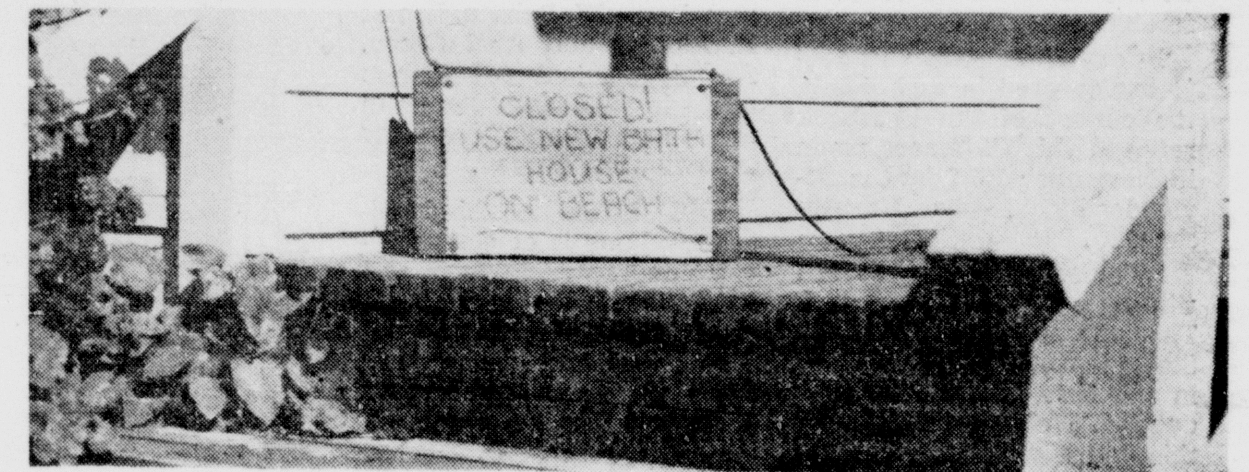

Eventually the park will include an administration building, a garage, lifeguard rooms, paving for the roads and more park buildings.

The Seadowns restaurant has been temporarily saved, and is leased by the state to a concessionaire. A new concession building is planned for the edge of the beach, but it has not been included in the first half-million dollar appropriations for developments.

There are three life guards on duty on the beach, with a jeep and paddle boards listed in their equipment.

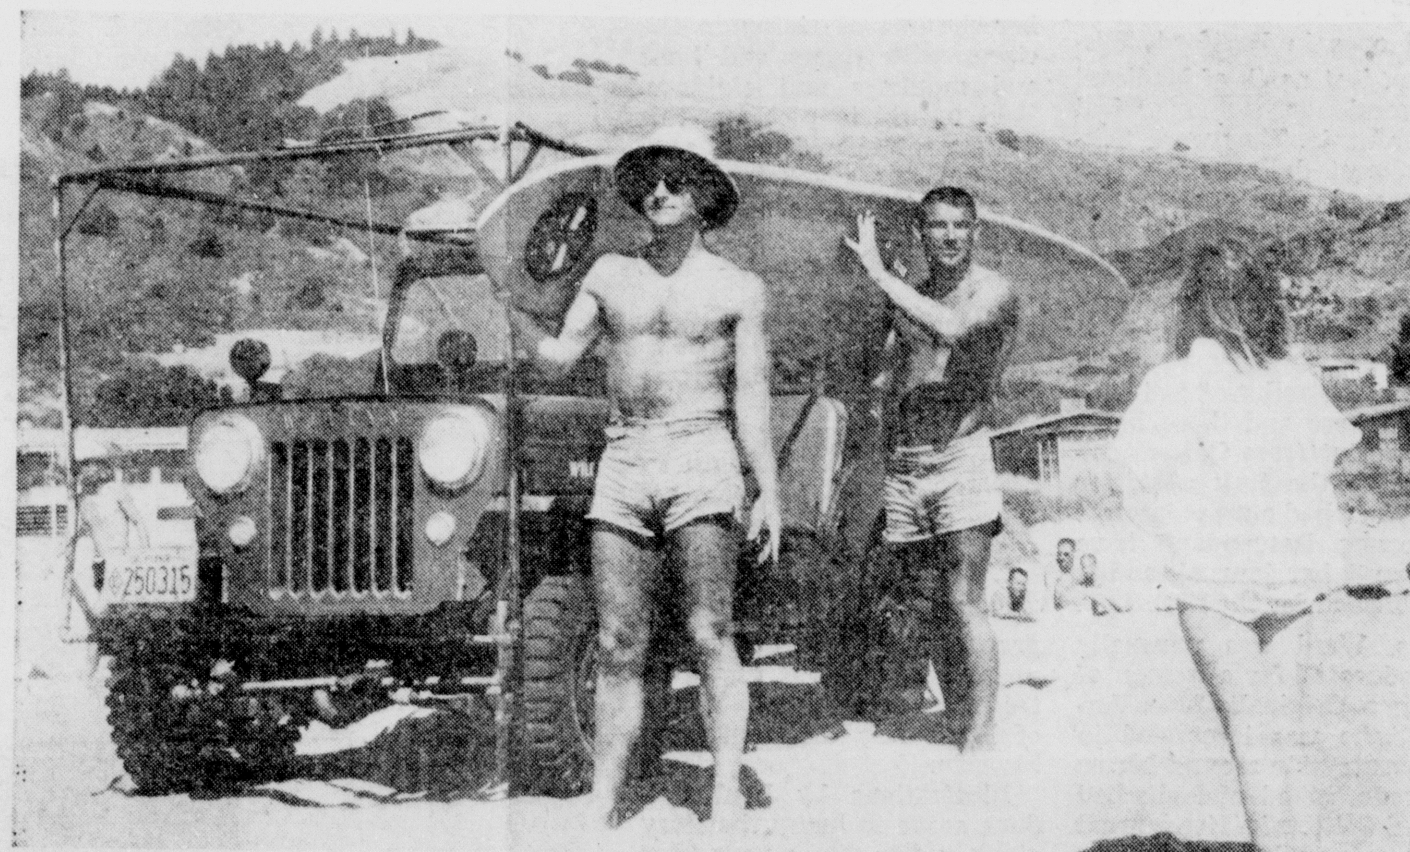

New footpaths join the parking lots and lead out into the beach area.

Persons enjoying the beach on a warm Saturday agree that the clearing and improvement were what was needed for a more comfortable day.

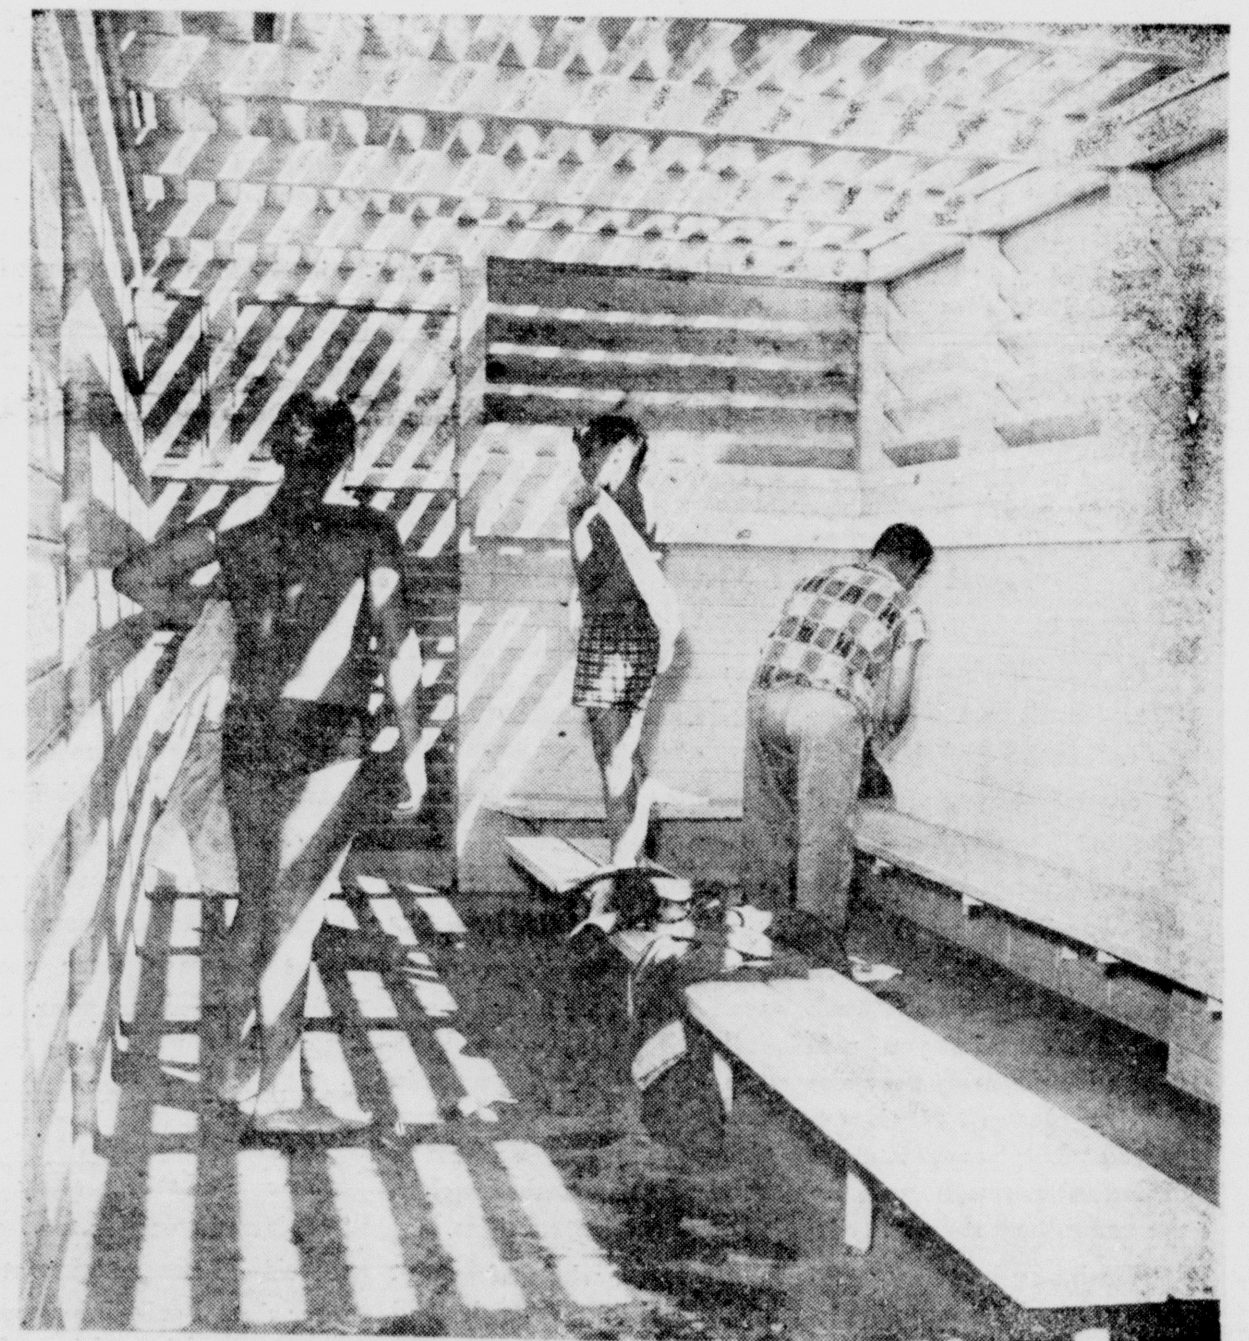

"CLOSED" reads the sign, but no one is unhappy because clean, new beach house has replaced former wooden one housed in building that once was a Coast Guard barracks. Now the old building is used by rangers only.

LIFEGUARDS AT south end of the beach heft their paddle board up to top of jeep where it rests on a rack, always ready for an emergency. They stand by all day keeping a look-out for "anything unusual" in the surf or on the beach. Left is Bill Williams, with Jim Sylvia. Watching them load the board is Denise Lorne of San Anselmo. The jeep also carried ropes and other rescue equipment. Another guard watches the north end of beach.

BEACH HOUSE interior on men's side has dressing area with wall hooks. Light filters down from the roof, which is half open, with a series of heavy slats allowing sunlight and fresh air through. Sides, too, are vents made of wood. Coarse screening makes decorative fill-in for high window areas. (Independent-Journal photos)

INSIDE OF THE BEACH HOUSE is covered with tile and brick to match exterior. Each wash bowl has a mirror above it and shelf to hold combs and towels while John or Jane spruces up again. Note upper screening and side screening allowing fresh ocean breeze to circulate through entire beach house. At right are dressing rooms and toilets.

New Encyclopedia Views 1958 Events

World events of 1958 are catalogued concisely in the just-published annual 1959 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. The big volume measures up to its predecessors in use of illustrations to supplement the text matter.

In the main portion of the Yearbook, authorities in their fields summarize the year's developments in areas of interest ranging from "Accidents" to "Zoology." Indexing and alphabetical arrangement of the topics make it easy to locate illustrations, as well as articles.

IN KEEPING with the practice of recent years the 1959 Yearbook features a collection of articles and papers dealing with a subject of special significance to Americans. These 61 closely-written pages, marked by a blue border, take a close look at America's global commitments. The story is told by ten contributors, each of whom has distinguished himself in research on the complexities of U. S. foreign policy.

In explaining why this subject is covered in such detail, the editors of the Yearbook refer to this statement made in November 1957 by the Soviet leader, Nikita Khrushchev:

"We declare a war. We will win over the United States. The threat to the United States is not in the ICBM but in the field of peaceful production. We are relentless in this and it will prove the superiority of our system."

THE SERIES OF articles in this special section treats various aspects of the manner in which America has responded to, and continues to react to, a world situation summarized by Khrushchev's statement.

Articles are grouped under subheadings starting with "America's Path To Power" which traces the emergence of the United States as a world leader. "The United Nations System" emphasizes America's role in the functioning of the world organization. Changing concepts of national defense and the resultant shift in tactics are explored in "Global Defenses of the U. S." Individual aspects of foreign aid become more understandable in the light of the background provided by "U. S. Money, Material and Manpower Aid to Other Nations." The final section, "Interdependency of Foreign Trade and U. S. Foreign Policy," discusses in detail the place and far-reaching effects of foreign trade politics and practices on the peoples and politics of the world.

Coming back to the main portion of the Yearbook, "Events of the Year" provides a chronological account of the happenings of 1958.

"The Year in Review" comprises a group of specially prepared articles interpreting the long-range effects of daily happenings in many fields. Among the contributors to this section are Lowell Thomas, Roger W. Babson, Ernest K. Lindley and Abel Green. An alphabetical compilation of stories involving "Names in the News" brings "The Year in Review" to an end.

THE BULK of this handsome volume is of course devoted to recording facts and figures resulting from almost every variety of human endeavor during 1958, as well as to the unusual manifestations of nature.

Many of the Yearbook's entries are signed by recognized experts. Thus we find George Gallup writing on public opinion polls; Avery Brundage reporting on preparations for the next Olympic Games; Anthony Boucher describing the year's output of mystery and science fiction; the activities of the Republican and Democratic parties being chronicled by Meade Alcorn and Paul Butler.

The $10-volume has a handsome maroon binding.

TINY MARINE creatures that resemble highly imaginative works of art illustrate earliest forms of life. They are described in Herbert Wendt's new book, "The Road to Man," published by Doubleday. This informal history of evolution is illustrated with 200 photographs. Above are magnified glass models. (American Museum of Natural History)

Pioneer Woman's Diary Gives Reader Essence Of Trip West

THE PRAIRIE SCHOONER LADY, by Harriet Sherrill Ward 1853, Westernlore Press, $5.75, pp. 180.

For all who are interested in the lore of the West in the days of the covered wagons here is an authentic picture. The book contains the diary entries of Harriet Sherrill Ward, who crossed the plains and mountains to California with her husband and children in 1853 to settle in Indian Valley, north of Lake Tahoe.

The entries cover the entire trip from the Ward's leaving from their friends and loved ones in Dartford, Wisconsin, just north of Madison, to several months after arrival in California. They were written almost daily as the trip progressed and contain the joys and fears of a "normal day's travel." Usually the wagon train covered from 10 to 18 miles per day.

The actual diary, now 103 years old, is yellowed and frayed and here and there bears the imprint from flowers collected on the trek west, for Mrs. Ward had a great interest in flowers. Descendants have preserved her journal, and it is published for the first time.

Mrs. Ward was unusually well-educated for a woman of her time. Originally from Vermont, she was interested in the countryside around her as she rode, hiked and climbed toward California. Her journal is an extremely fine way to experience the trek and the conditions of it, and it remains easy and pleasant reading throughout.

—B.H.

LOLLY'S PONY RIDE by Charlotte Steiner, Doubleday, $2.75, 31 pp. For ages 2 to 6.

Here's a picture book for little children about a little girl who wanted a pony to ride. But Christmas brought her only a hobby horse, so she drew a picture on the wall of the pony she wanted and the rest of the book shows her dreams of riding in the circus with tigers and lions and monkeys and children. Told mostly in pictures, this fantasy somehow lacks charm, but perhaps a younger reader might find it more enticing. Little text.

—B.H.

LITTLE TUCK by Clara Baldwin, Doubleday & Co., 96 pp. $2, for children up to age 10.

This is an amusing tale of a small boy of the Kentucky mountains and how he got along from day to day on his farm home. Little Tuck as the boy is known, through series of mishaps and better-haps grows up a bit in the course of the story, and serves to introduce the reader to a way of life surely different from his own.

Illustrations by Paul Galdone serve to hurry the story along and to give a youngster an idea of what the family looks like. It's a story that a parent won't mind reading to his child.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By BERT BROWN, Marin Cleaners, GL 4-4792

Can "Wash and Wear" Be Drycleaned?

To give a short answer, "Yes, 'Wash and Wear' garments can be dry cleaned." A recent survey revealed that 47% of the homemakers did not know "wash and wear" garments could be dry cleaned. Now in most boys' and men's "wash and wear" suits you will find a label stating they can be dry cleaned. It is expected that manufacturers of ladies' garments will do the same very shortly.

"Wash and wear" garments reached popularity when synthetic fibers became widely available. Nylon and Dacron could be washed by hand and hung up wet. They dry fairly smooth. These man-made fibers were combined with natural fibers, wool and cotton, in suits and dresses and retained their shape fairly well after washing, especially when the wool and cotton fibers had been resin treated. The important thing to remember is to read all labels thoroughly, and follow instructions.

However, when after several washings, "wash and wear" garments do not appear nice enough to wear socially, they are not unserviceable. Professional dry cleaning in most cases restores the original freshness. Don't be afraid to purchase "wash and wear" garments, because you don't want to wash them yourself. Remember your dry cleaner can keep them looking neat and fresh-looking for you.

The interesting story of "wash and wear" is too long to tell in one article; at a later date I will have more news on this subject for you.

ALWAYS IN THE NICK of time William Dowton (Pat Schaeffer) arrives, but this time with bad news. Heroine Mary Middleton (Elaine Mitchell) takes it hard while her daughter Julia (Sally King) comforts her. The three have key parts in the melodrama "The Drunkard" playing each Friday and Saturday night at Sausalito Little Theatre. (Carroll R. Stoerker photo)

GIANT KELP — The Giant Kelps of the California coast are the largest in the world. They grow in great beds, forming an off-shore belt. Growing as much as 40 to 60 ft. deep, they are rooted by suckering holdfasts, and have very long, flaccid but tough stems. Their brown foliage is large and heavy. The plants are buoyed up by bladders or floats. Storms tear up some of the kelp, often breaking off pieces of rock rather than loosening the plant's hold, leaving tangled mounds on our beaches. ## You Can Collect Limpets If . . . If You Are Quick With A Knife

Amateur shell collectors often overlook a common type of snail or gastropod that may be found in great numbers on the rocks along the coast and to a lesser extent along the shores of the bay. Possibly it is overlooked because it doesn't display much in the way of color and the shape is deceiving and lacks the great variations found in many of the snails. This overlooked group of shells actually has many members which go by the common name of limpet or tent shells.

Most of the limpets have shells shaped like shallow cones without any evidence of spiral growth lines that are found in the usual snails. Inside the shell is a snail that has a large strong foot that it uses for locomotion and for clamping the shell tightly to the rocks when disturbed. It has been estimated that a limpet about an inch in diameter can hold on to rocks so tightly that it would take a pull of about 70 pounds to remove the limpet.

For this reason the collector has to take the limpet by surprise and quickly slip a knife blade under the shell and flip the animal from the rock because once they clamp down efforts to remove them will chip or break the shell.

Although the limpets appear to be sluggish and are seldom seen to move they are really quite active during the night. Then they raise themselves on their stomach-foot and cruise slowly over the surface of the rocks in search of small plants which they scrape from the rocks with a file-like instrument called a radula. From study and research it would appear that the limpet usually returns to the same spot on the rock after a night's feeding and the scar that is present on the rock fits the edges of the limpet's shell perfectly.

Another limpet, found washed up on the beach, is the keyhole limpet which reaches a length of several inches and receives its name from the hole in the top of the shell. The keyhole limpets are actually closely related to the abalones and not the other smaller limpets that lack the hole at the point of the shell.

Overture, Ballet Records Are Fine Summer Listening

By L. J. KRAMP

New stereo discs of overture, ballet and other lighter orchestral music have appeared in time for summer listening.

In "Overture," by the Virtuoso Symphony of London under Arthur Winograd, (Audio Fidelity) are the Beethoven "Egmont," the Brahms "Academic Festival," Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," and two others by Verdi and Wagner. The same combination provides an equally brilliant companion, "Popular Overtures," including Rossini's "Barber of Seville," Smetana's "Bartered Bride," and three others.

"Gilbert and Sullivan Overtures," by an orchestra under Alan Ward (RCA Victor), is a frothy group of six souvenirs of such light opera favorites as "The Mikado," "Pinafore," and "The Pirates of Penzance."

For a real bargain in overtures, however, you can get a single stereo disc with Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" and his "Capriccio Italien" on one side, and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Russian Easter Overture" and "Capriccio Espagnol" on the other side—all by the Vienna State Opera Orchestra (Vanguard).

De Falla's complete "Three-Cornered Hat," a 1919 ballet suite, makes pleasant listening in a new disc by a Madrid orchestra under Jesus Aramburi (Columbia), and the Boston Pops under Arthur Fiedler puts new luster into the 1919 Rossini-Respighi "La Boutique Fantasque" (RCA Victor). The Ibert "Divertissement" fills out the other side. The 1929 "Age of Gold" ballet, by Shostakovich, is paired with his First Symphony in a crisp issue by the London Symphony under Jean Martinon (RCA Victor).

Tschaikowsky's better known ballets, "Swan Lake" and "Sleeping Beauty," are available in wide range sound by the London Virtuoso Symphony under Arthur Winograd. His "Nutcracker" suite is coupled with his "Romeo and Juliet Overture" by the same orchestra under Alfred Wallenstein (both Audio Fidelity).

Bizet's colorful "L'Arlesienne" suites, with its exquisite and subtle score, has come out in two new editions, one by L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande under Ernest Ansermet (London), coupled with Bizet's "Carmen" suite; and the other by the Royal Opera Orchestra of Covent Garden under Jean Morel (RCA Victor), with Chabrier's sparkling "Espana Rapsodie" and "Marche Joyeuse" on the other side. The "L'Arlesienne" are tossups, so take your pick of the flip sides.

Rimsky-Korsakov's music, long a favorite of high fidelity fans who know him best for "Scheherazade," is pleasant summer listening in a new stereo disc of his "Sadko," "Flight of the Bumble Bee" and "Christmas Eve" suites, by L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande under Ernest Ansermet (London).

Greig's first and second "Peer Gynt" suites, including "Anitra's Dance" and "The Hall of the Mountain King," are recorded superbly by the Oslo Philharmonic under Odd Gruner-Hegge (Camden).

Modern orchestral scoring at its best is Richard Rodgers' "Victory at Sea," Volume 1, arranged and conducted by Robert Russell Bennett, with the RCA Victor Symphony (RCA Victor). This is a new stereo issue of a condensation of a magnificent 13-hour score, and it is a companion of a recently issued Volume 2.

to right, are John O'Dwyer, Mrs. Margaret T. Rattray and Peggy Scott. Fifty teen-agers act as instruction aides.

Glass On Steel

The porcelain enamel on electric ranges is essentially glass fused on steel, and should be handled like glass in cleaning. Enamel parts should not be washed while the range is warm. Spots of vinegar, milk, tomato, lemon and other fruit juices should be wiped up immediately to prevent dull spots caused by acids eating the shiny surface.

5,000 Youngsters Take Swimming, Life-Saving Class

August marks the final session of free Red Cross swimming lessons in which 5,000 children throughout Marin County have participated this summer.

The classes, averaging 30 youngsters, are grouped into non-swimmers, beginning, intermediate and life-saving, and include students over seven years. The life-saving class features mouth-to-mouth resuscitation as the official method used by the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council ad hoc committee on artificial respiration. Although three techniques are taught, this one is preferred.

Marin pools are filled with the total registration of the 8-week program. Included are pools at Tamalpais High School, San Rafael High School (jointly sponsored by the Red Cross and the San Rafael Recreation Commission), Drake High School, Woodacre, and Inverness, Shell Beach. Use of McDaniel Pool at Bolinas had to be discontinued because of water shortage.

In charge of registration in the water safety program are Mesdames I. A. Stewart, Jack Sward, Donald Pederson, Carlton Hyman, Gedge Knopf. They are assisted by P-TA members Robert Walker, Louis C. Avedano and Andres Carrino.

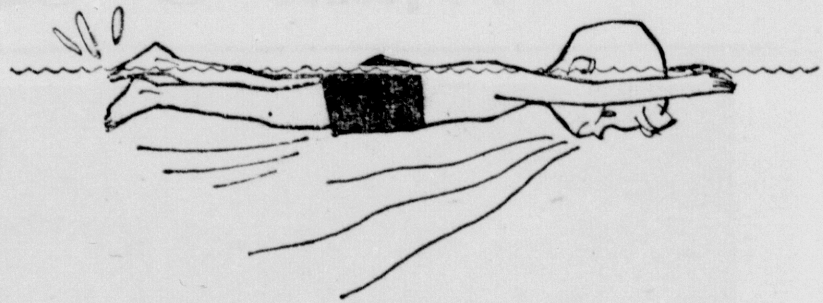

Twenty-five instructors are assisted by 50 water safety aides between 14 and 17 years old, who have completed 16 hours in a water safety course.

"We have received many messages of appreciation for this program," said Mrs. William Rattray, executive director of the American Red Cross in Marin.

Teach Him To Swim

NEXT STEP in teaching Johnny to swim is instruction in the prone kick glide or "steamboat." Have him lie face down on a bench, table, bed, or other flat surface and, keeping his legs straight but not stiff, move them up and down in a slow, even motion. When he (and Jimmy) can do this, have them get in waist-deep water, and with one boy towing the other by the hands, have them practice this kick. After practice, they should try it on their own.

NOW FOR the arm stroke, called the human stroke. Have Johnny keep his arms under water and reach forward, first with one arm and then the other, as if he were crawling. As the right arm goes forward, the left hand should come back and touch the lower part of the chest. Combine the arm and leg movements and keep the face in the water at this time.

JOHNNY IS ready to try an armstroke (the human stroke) and combine it with the kick and breathing to do a complete stroke on the front. Arms are kept below the surface. As he moves his right arm forward, he turns his face left out of the water to breathe, as in this picture. He kicks in regular motion.

WON'T NEED LAWN MOWER IN 10 YEARS

A research biologist predicts that within the next 10 years, there will be lawns that need no mowing and dwarf trees that produce abundant crops of normal fruit.

"It may take one year or it may take 10," said Dr. James A. Lockhart, research fellow in biology at the California Institute of Technology.

"But it's just a matter of time until an anti-gibberellin is developed that will make this possible."

Dr. Lockhart described anti-gibberellin as a hormone-like substance that suppresses the growth of the plant without affecting its ability to yield normal crops.

Doses of the substance could double the height of plants, increase leaf size and crop output, and keep plants healthy in hot weather, he said.

Your Dog Going On Vacation Too? Mind Some Tips

—Plan to take your dog on vacation this year? If so, the Automobile Legal Association makes these suggestions:

—See your veterinarian first. He can provide pills for canine car-sickness, plus health and vaccination certificates if required.

—Feed the dog lightly a few hours before driving time and keep his water jar handy in the car.

—Dog's "baggage" should include familiar items, such as a favorite blanket, toy and food dish.

—Protect the dog and driver by keeping your pet in the back seat.

—Exercise the dog regularly.

—If the dog must be left alone in the car, be sure there is plenty of air.

—Never try to smuggle your dog into hotels or motels. Many first-rate inns welcome animals.

BOY DOWN-THE-STREET

You gave to me a butterfly
That I might wear it in my hair;
The daisies you picked on the hill
That I might have some flowers to wear.

You gave me gifts of treasures garnered,
Running to search for many more;
And then one day you gave your heart—
That rarest gift, from one just four!

Marin Living

Living High On Windy Hill Is Rough On Plants Unless . . .

Living high on a windy hill may be refreshing, but it's a tough environment for some garden shrubs. In fact, the gardener who lives anywhere in the path of a prevailing wind is often hard pressed to defend himself from it.

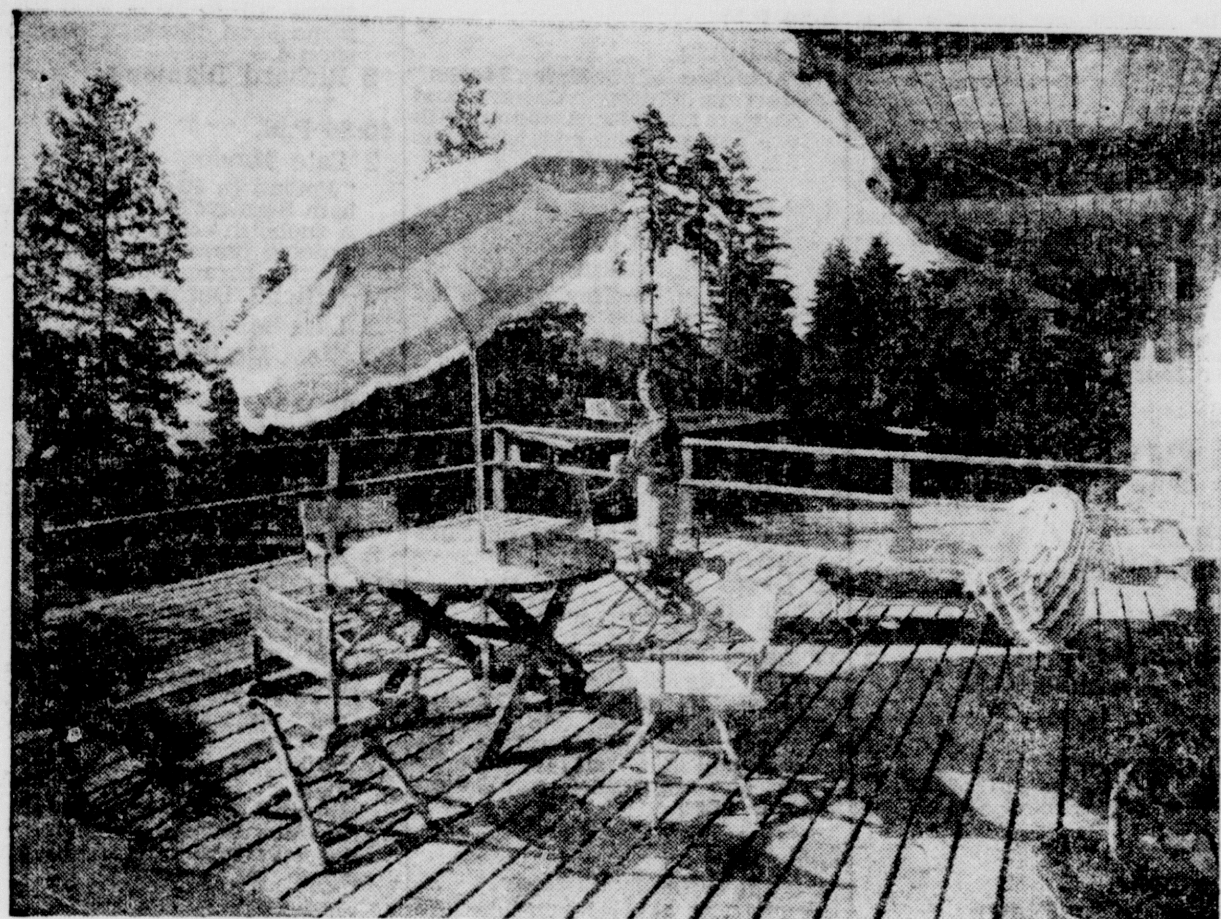

For these wind-blown few, the California Assn. of Nurserymen offers a list of plants that can take it. And any gardener who gardens in adversity—along the seashore or on a windy, sun baked plot—will do well to pay it heed.

Cotoneasters, say the nurserymen, are plants that revel in the rough going. These robust berried shrubs, from the contour-hugging Rockspray Cotoneaster to the graceful and arching Silver Leaf variety, will serve you well in any soil, with little or no attention to water. For purposes of providing a windbreak, however, the Silver Leaf Cotton-easter stands head and shoulders above the others.

Karo Pittosporum and its cousin, Victorian Box, are both candidates for an unfriendly climate or soil. Karo is probably the tougher of the two, its grayish foliage indicating a good resistance to drought, but Victorian Box is the more attractive for its wavy, green leaves and the creamy white blossoms which provide a not-to-be-forgotten scent each spring.

Nothing could be more typically Californian and few more adapted to any difficult condition, be it wind or drought, than the Olive.

DURING THE SUMMER months, entertaining is apt to be pretty informal. Something cool to dampen the throat and an invitation to relax and chat on an inviting porch deck like this one is usually sufficient and successful. This handsome deck of 2x8 fir planks has been outfitted with table and chairs for afternoon bridge parties, dining and just loafing.

RELAX IN STYLE

For That Casual Summer Life A Spacious Deck Suits Marin

With summer in full bloom and temperatures hitting the high marks, home life is apt to get pretty casual. The main concern in summer living is comfort. What every homeowner needs at this time of the year is a restful spot where he can kick off his shoes and relax.

For most householders, this means a patio which has been designed and outfitted to cater to their pleasure, and one which takes a minimum amount of fuss and fixing to keep it in shape.

ALONG THESE LINES, the wood deck has been claiming a lot of attention. Because of its construction, a wood deck can be built on the same level as floors in the living area of the home, even if they are a full story above the ground. This feature, of course, endears the deck to the hearts of folks who don't want to walk more than three steps to their outdoor easy chair.

Building a deck is easy. Sturdy posts of 4x4 inch fir are the vertical supports, and framework should be 2x10 or 2x12 inch fir. Deck boards can be 2x4, or 2x8 inch fir and should be laid with a quarter-inch spacing between each.

If possible, there should be access to the deck from the kitchen, as well as from either family room or living room. This will save a lot of footwork in serving meals or party refreshments.

CARE FOR A WOOD deck consists of a slight-of-hand trick done with the garden hose and a stream of water. A few seconds' time leaves it clean.

Smart homeowners save on building costs and maintenance by leaving the fir deck boards entirely natural rather than painting them. In the weathering process, the fir decking becomes an elegant silver, a striking shade which compliments gaily colored patio furniture. Some folks, however, help the weathering process along by giving the decking one coat of driftwood stain, letting it weather from there.

ALTHOUGH MOST decks are designed in a simple rectangle, using other geometric figures assures an individual note. Trapeziums, rhomboids, triangles, and half moons are interesting possibilities.

A simple railing or one which features a built-in bench puts the finishing touches on the deck. Planters filled with distinctive shrubbery or bright flora are also popular for deck edges.

KPIX Show On Mental Health Set

KPIX in co-operation with Stanford University and the Mental Research Institute, will present a program on mental health entitled "The Fine Line," Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

In an effort to illustrate the great barrier of public disassociation with the problems of mental health, the program will open with an interview between Dr. Jackson, Head of the department of psychiatry of the Palo Alto Clinic and director of the mental health institute and a "Mr. Normal" who it has been determined has never had mental illness and has only a passing knowledge of psychiatry. "Mr. Normal" will be selected from passersby on Montgomery street in San Francisco.

The interview will take place in the psychiatric offices of the Palo Alto Clinic. The interview will attempt to illustrate the fine line between the "normal" and the mentally disturbed state, and aim to contribute to a better understanding of the nature of mental illness and the relationship between a psychiatrist and his patient.

Having substantiated the extent of the problem of mental illness, the program will proceed to present to the public various existing research approaches in the study of the causes and prevention of this serious medical problem. To explain what research is being accomplished, two researchers will participate on the program.

They are Gregory Bateson of the Stanford School of Medicine, and Dr. Harold Alexander Abramson of New York City.

To dramatize the family interactions which seem to contribute to producing mental illness, Bateson will use a hypothetical family consisting of students at the Stanford summer television institute.
